A NOTE from the President has forced Mr. Daugherty out of the Attorney-General's office. He could not do otherwise than resign, although it was understood the President intended that he should retain his office until the close of the investigation.

That would have seemed a reasonable program, in view of the fact that thus far the chief witnesses against Mr. Daugherty have been two confessed criminals and one excited lady. However, in or out of office, the truth will come out.

A CONGRESSMAN is indicted for grafting.

Attacks on dead men, that can't reply, are particularly numerous.

Mr. Vanderlip, who used to be head of the biggest bank in America, has insured his life for a million dollars, the money to be used in hunting down graft—in case murderers dispose of him, to end his activities.

We live in exciting times.

LEARNED HARVARD gentlemen—who might be more usefully employed—will undertake thought transmission, or telepathy, from Harvard to Paris, across the Atlantic ocean. It's a harmless pastime, and if the gentlemen on both sides have enough imagination they will believe that they have accomplished something.

MEANWHILE, IT is fortunate for the human race that slowly, through the ages, men have learned, with the spoken and printed word, that they can transfer thought from one brain to another satisfactorily. There never will be any such thing as telepathy on this limited planet.

Naturally, with millions of people thinking, and thinking about each other, within the limits 24 hours, many interesting coincidences happen. They deceive with false hopes and beliefs those that pay too much attention to coincidence.

NEWTON D. BAKER, Secretary of War under Woodrow Wilson, tells about a college to have 60,000 students and be the biggest in the United States. He has seen the plans.

Mr. Baker refused to give any details as to who is the organizer of the college, but says it will be too big.

It needn't be, if the professors use radio. Students can be gathered in little groups and all hear the learned professor as he sits talking in his study.

ROB DOCTOR OF $100,000 IN BONDS

Thief Makes Off With Fortune While Haverhill Physician Is Absent From Office

Haverhill, March 29.—Theft of 14,878 shares of various stocks and bonds valued at more than $100,000, from the office of Dr. W. H. H. Briggs, No. 334 Main street, leaked out today after the police had been working for more than a week on the mysterious case.

The theft occurred during a five hour absence of Dr. Briggs from his office on March 20. He left the office at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and returned at 9 o'clock.

In this interval the fortune in stocks and securities, most of them negotiable, disappeared from a desk in which he had placed them preparatory to placing them in a bank vault.

Dr. Briggs admitted to the American representative today that the securities had been stolen. He declared, however, that he would know who to put his hands on if the man had not left town.

The physician stated that until March 20 he had kept the stocks and securities in a vault in his office. On that date, however, he took them from the vault and placed them in a drawer of his desk, intending to place them in a vault at his bank.

Two thousand shares Jackson Motor Corporation, preferred; 9,000 Sinclair Oil & Gas Co.; 2,000 Hercules Petroleum; 1,000 coupons Woodcraft Co., $2 each, due July 31; 400 shares Dayton Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., preferred; 104 Walker-Johnson Truck Co., common; 25 Walker-Johnson Truck Co., preferred; 90 East Coast Fisheries, common; 20 East Coast Fisheries, preferred; 50 Jones, McDuffee & Stratton Corp., Class A; 53 Massachusetts Hoisting, preferred; 27 Troy Foundry & Machine Co., preferred; 27 Troy Foundry & Machinery, common; 70 Acme Fishing Tool Co., preferred; 2 New England Fisheries, preferred; 10 Barnstable Corp., Class B.

FLOURISHES GUN ON BACK BAY BRIDGE

Wilbur McIvon, thirty, of Wayland, went on the warpath when he accumulated a cargo of hootch in Boston today. He frightened pedestrians along the Boston & Albany bridge near the Massachusetts avenue subway station when he flourished a revolver. When arrested he had the revolver unloaded, in his pocket. He is charged with carrying a revolver.

GRAND OPERA WARBLE CLASSED AS 'NOISE'

MISS LEONORA WOOD.

This Jamaica Plain girl who aims to "make" grand opera, if assiduous practice will do it, was the object of complaint at City Hall by certain neighbors who described the young contralto's warblings as "noise." Miss Wood, who used to practice from 7 to 9 in the morning, changed her hours for vocal exercise, but still the neighbors weren't satisfied, so now she is going to keep "right at it," no matter what happens.

SINGER DEFIES HER ANGRY NEIGHBORS

By HAROLD R. HALL

'Tis a sad commentary on the good folk of Halifax street, Jamaica Plain, but—well, they just don't know the difference between art and the mooing cow.

That is not the opinion of the reporter. It is the opinion of pretty Miss Leonora Wood, the charming young contralto who sang so much that some 20 of her neighbors petitioned Herbert Ellis, Boston's official rent adjuster at City Hall to stop it.

Leonora was at her piano today as usual, and declares that she is not going to stop her journey to the grand opera stage just because a

2 FALL 35 FEET, ONE KILLED

Elevator Inspector and Brother Plunge Down Shaft at Charlestown

An elevator inspector was killed and his brother fatally injured when they fell thirty-five feet down a shaft at the Brockway Smith Corporation plant at No. 465 Medford street, Charlestown.

Murdock Mackenzie, twenty-three, of No. 419 Main street, Everett, was killed in the fall. His brother, John H. Mackenzie, aged twenty-two, is at the Cambridge Relief Hospital with a fractured skull and injuries to his back.

CLOSED AT NOON.

The brothers were employed as inspectors by the Otis Elevator Company.

When the Brockway Smith plant closed down at noon, today, the brothers were sent to inspect the elevator and make some repairs.

They erected a staging on the third floor level of the building and were working on this staging when it suddenly gave away.

The elevator was above the brothers and they dropped down the shaft a distance of thirty-five feet.

HEARD SCREAMS.

Other workmen in the building heard the men scream as their bodies dropped through the shaft.

Both men were unconscious on the concrete floor at the foot of the shaft when help reached them.

They were rushed to the Cambridge Relief Hospital. In the meantime, someone had called their father, with whom they made their home, and he was at the hospital when the ambulance arrived.

The doctors at the hospital pronounced the older brother dead. Physicians said it was likely that death was instantaneous.

RAIN COMING AND STORM ON WAY

Rain tonight and Sunday, followed by clearing and rise in temperature, is the forecast of the weather sage.

Warnings have been displayed along the New England coast for a storm, now central over the upper Mississippi Valley, and reported moving northeastward with increasing intensity.

ARREST OF ABDUCTOR IS NEAR

Identity of Blonde Girl's Assailant Known; Warrant Out for Alleged Chum

The red-haired driver of the automobile in which a beautiful blonde girl, with hair streaming and blood on her face, battled for freedom as she whirled through Salem streets, was made known to the Salem police today.

According to an employe of Goodell's garage in Lafayette street, Salem, where the Essex coach alleged to have been stolen was stored over night, the red-haired driver is a former Salem milkman, later a Malden garage helper and still later a bootlegger.

A warrant was secured today by the Salem police for an alleged companion of the abduction car driver. The warrant is for a man said to be named Booth.

According to the police allegations, the red-haired driver and the blonde girl, with Booth and another girl, arrived in Salem Thursday night in two cars. The red-haired man and the blonde were in the Essex coach. Booth and the other girl were in a Hudson coach.

GIRL BATTLES IN AUTO.

The four, according to the police, went to the Lincoln House in Lafayette street and started a party with the aid of considerable liquor.

At midnight the party broke up and the two cars were placed in Goodell's garage for the night.

In the morning the red-haired man, who was recognized by the day man, came into the garage with the blonde, a girl not more than twenty-one years old, and took the Essex coach out.

A short time later, according to the garage man, Booth came for the Hudson coach, but could produce no claim check. The garage man refused him the car.

The next thing seen of the Essex was when it whirled through Lafayette street with the red-haired driver and the blonde girl battling furiously. Shrieks and screams from the girl attracted the attention of pedestrians.

With her fists she pummeled and punched the driver, who fought back while he kept the speeding car on its course. He was in his shirtsleeves, wearing a vest but no coat. He was without collar or necktie. His face was bloody.

SHOTS BLAZE IN CHASE.

At Lafayette and West avenue State Officer Angus McDonald blocked the progress of the racing car. The driver stopped and McDonald ran to open the door.

As he placed his hand on the door the driver shot the machine back into reverse, nearly crashed into a drug store window, threw his wheel over hard and then whirled in a half circle and was away in the opposite direction.

McDonald commandeered another car and pursued. The speedometer

4 MASKED BANDITS HOLD UP MEN IN AUTO

Pawtucket, March 29.—Four masked automobile bandits, armed with revolvers, early today held up and robbed Albert Cavanaugh and William Wright, both of Pawtucket, while they were riding along the highway of Cumberland.

The robbers took $205 and a watch from Wright and $110 and a watch from Cavanaugh. They disabled the Cavanaugh car and escaped.

ASKED AID OF HUGHES IN SALE

Daugherty Witness Testifies Secretary of War Wanted Official Opinion

Washington, March 29.—A startling story of how investigation into aircraft frauds was blocked by an official of the Department of Justice who had been appointed at the instance of attorneys for one of the companies under investigation was related to the Daugherty investigating committee today by H. L. Scaife, a former agent of the department.

Scaife also brought in the name of Secretary of War John W. Weeks in connection with the sale of the Hosch Magneto Company by A. Mitchell Palmer, alien custodian.

Weeks, Scaife testified, went to Hughes for an opinion on the sale.

Another startling proposition advanced by Scaife was to the effect that the failure of the American aircraft program during the war was due to pro-German influences operating through Mixer & Co., a Japanese banking syndicate which controlled the Standard Aircraft Corporation and which before the war had acted as paymasters for the German Secret Service.

Scaife told the committee that

73 YEAR OLD WATCHMAN ROUTS BANDITS

Newark, N. J., March 29.—One liquor bandit is dying, one other has two bullet wounds and two more are under arrest as a result of an attempt today to steal $50,000 worth of liquor which was in the care of a 73-year-old watchman. The attempted holdup was in a garage where Henry Berseman was guarding the liquor. He outfought four bandits, seriously wounded two in a pistol battle and escaped with only a bullet wound in the wrist.

COAL OPERATORS RATIFY MINERS' WAGE SCALE

Philadelphia, March 29.—The Central Pennsylvania Bituminous Coal Operators Association today ratified the agreement calling for continuance of present wages for a three-year period and ended the district No. 2 controversy with only the formality remaining of drawing up the agreement and signing it. This will be attended to later today.

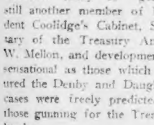
MELLON DRIVE TO CENTRE ON MEANS' CHARGE THAT HE 'GOT' HIM

WILL PROBE PERMITS FOR RUM

Means' Testimony to Be Aired if the Committee Adopts McKellar Resolution

Washington, March 29 (I.N.S.).—With two scalps dangling from their belts—those of Denby and Daugherty—the senatorial tomahawkers turned their attention today to "getting" still another member of President Coolidge's Cabinet, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, and developments as sensational as those which featured the Denby and Daugherty cases were freely predicted by those gunning for the Treasury head.

In the background lurks the never as yet explained assertion of Gaston B. Means at the Daugherty investigation that he once investigated Sec-



Senator McKellar

Secretary Mellon

HECTIC DEBATE

What he "got" on Mellon he did not say and the committee did not pursue the inquiry. The inference was, however, that it related to whiskey withdrawals.

Mellon is the Cabinet officer responsible for prohibition enforcement. He and his family were the principal stockholders of the Overholt Distillery Company, one of the largest in the country.

A resolution sponsored by Senator McKellar of Tennessee, directing the Judiciary Committee to investigate Mellon's fitness and eligibility to hold office, slumbered on the table in the Senate today.

It will be called up Monday and debated with all the savagery that has characterized similar debates in the heckle days of the last two months.

The resolution stands a good chance of passing.

The pep upon which the investigation is to be hung is a section of the statutes back to revolutionary times, prohibiting the Secretary of the Treasury from engaging in "trade and commerce."

At the time of Mellon's entrance into the Cabinet he was an officer or director in more than fifty corporations and banks. He resigned his offices, but his "interests" remain, according to his opponents. They will seek to show that he has been unable to divorce his private business from his government post.

Republicans are indignant and

Secretary Hoover Secretary Wallace

alarmed. They charge a well-defined political plot to the Democrats to pick off members of the Cabinet singly, one after another, after the manner of snipers in the war. After Mellon, they assert, will come Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Secretary of War Weeks.

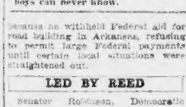
because he withheld Federal aid for road building in Arkansas, refusing to permit large Federal payments until certain local situations were straightened out.

LED BY REED

Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, and Senator Caraway, both of Arkansas, are to lead the attack on Wallace.

The attack on Secretary Hoover, according to the same story, is to be led by Senator Reed, Democrat,



Justice Rugg Judge Kenyon

Missouri. Hoover's traditional enemy.

With Daugherty out of the cabinet all interest centres in speculation as to his probable successor as Attorney-General.

Chief Justice Arthur P. Rugg of the Massachusetts Supreme Court is one of those prominently mentioned.

James M. Beck (Photo by Underwood & Underwood) G. J. Roberts

Judge Kenyon, a Republican, has also been mentioned.

But many persons believe the post will be offered by President Coolidge to Owen J. Roberts, who is now prosecuting the civil suit in the Teapot Dome and California oil lease scandals against Edward L. Doheny and Harry M. Sinclair.

OTHERS SLATED

There are still others who predict former United States Senator William S. Kenyon of Iowa, now a Federal District Judge in that's fate, will be the President's choice.

Meantime Solicitor General James M. Beck is acting attorney general and some persons assert he may be given the place for keeps.

Others mentioned are Harlan Stone, former professor of law and head of the legal division of Columbia University, and John W. Crim, who recently brought about the indictment in Chicago of Charles R. Forbes in the Veterans' Bureau scandal and of Congressman John W. Langley of Kentucky in alleged rum bribery cases.

For further developments see the Boston American.

2 ARRESTED IN WHISKEY SEIZURE

Worcester, March 29.—Nearly $5,000 worth of what the Federal prohibition officials claim to be whiskey, was seized ch board a truck owned and operated by George J. Hesse of Providence today. The Federal officers arrested Press and Samuel Stahl of 67 Lafayette street.

Press said he was delivering the load of 75 cases and seven kegs of liquor to Stahl and was to be paid after he had unloaded it at an address Stahl was to give him.

Stahl, the prohibition officers say, admitted the load was to have been his but refused to name the address at which it was to have been delivered.

OIL PROBE RESTS WHILE JURY HAS SINCLAIR CASE

Sessions to Be Resumed Tuesday, When William Boyce Thompson Will Appear

Washington, March 29.—The Senate oil committee was in recess today until Tuesday, when its plans to question William Boyce Thompson, former chairman of the Financial Committe of the Republican National Committee, about the liquidation of the Republican deficit incurred in the 1920 campaign.

Grand Jury action in the Senate's centempt proceedings against Harry F. Sinclair is expected before the committee resumes its inquiry.

The Sinclair case was presented to the Grand Jury yesterday, but it adjourned until Monday, the last day of its existence, without making a report. A decision Monday, however, is regarded as certain.

W. L. Rintler of Tulsa, Okla., president of the Prodpcers & Refiners Oil Company, was subpoenaed and Senator Walsh announced that he planned to call three or four more witnesses to substantiate the sensational convention oil deal story told by Al Jennings, once famous train robber and friend of the late Jake Hamon.

LOAFING CHARGED IN BUILDING U. S. CAMP

Washington, March 29.—Loafing and wrongful allocation of men in the construction of Camp Sherman at Chillicothe, O., cost the government $2,100,000, it was charged in an amended brief filed by the government in Federal court at Columbus today against the A. Bentley & Sons Co. of Toledo, contractors, according to an announcement of the Department of Justice. The total claim against the contractor was $3,164,789.

VOTES $1,500,000 FOR AIR MAIL SERVICE

Washington, March 29.—The House today agreed to appropriate $1,500,000 for operation of the New York-San Francisco air mail service during the fiscal year beginning July 1. It also approved an additional appropriation of $1,350,000 for operation of the mail service by night flying.

MAN STEALING RIDE ON TRAIN INJURED

Stealing a ride on the top of a Boston & Albany freight train, Jeremiah F. Foley, twenty-nine, of No. 5 Park street, Charlestown, was struck by a bridge at Felton street, West Newton, and knocked unconscious to the roadbed.

He was taken to the Newton Hospital, suffering from severe scalp wounds and possible concussion of the brain.

ROXBURY WAIF FINDS LOVING PARENTS

Little "Buster" Goes to Live on Farm, and Happy Future Is Assured

"Buster," fourteen months-old child advertised for adoption through the want ad columns of the Boston American, has become a farmer.

The husky, handsome youngster was taken from his temporary "mother," Mrs. Jennie Sheehy, of No. 58 Heath street, Roxbury, by Mr. and Mrs. James Gibson of No. 298 Chestnut street, Randolph.

Though many offers of adoption had been received, and many women had visited Mrs. Sheehy's home, the child "took to" "Jim" Gibson immediately.

Followed a visit to the child's mother and young Buster, whose name, by the way, is "Martin," left for Randolph attired in brand new clothes purchased by Gibson.

The boy will grow up no "mollycoddle" according to Gibson, owner of an extensive milk route in Randolph. Hens, cows, pigs and all the other denizens of a real farm will be Buster's companions from now on.

"It's a cinch," said Mr. Gibson. "Buster will know which side to milk a cow from before he's in Randolph very long. And if his memory is good," he added, "I can use him handily in learning the milk route."

COOK ASSAILS EDWARDS AS "AGITATOR"

Auditor, in New Attack, Accuses General of Spreading "Insidious Propaganda"

State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook fired another broadside at General Clarence R. Edward, head of the Massachusetts American Legion, today, in the controversy over the employment of war veterans as field auditors in Cook's department.

Cook made public a letter sent to General Edwards, accusing the general of "using your prestige and the organization which you represent to disseminate, like a common agitator, an insidious and incendiary propaganda which is in itself un-American and repugnant alike to all classes of fair-minded persons."

The auditor's letter was in reply to General Edwards' letter, given out earlier in the week.

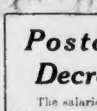
In defending himself against the general's charge that he discriminates against war veterans in employing men, Mr. Cook says:

"You appear to have lost sight of the fact that at the time you conferred with me, six out of nine male examiners of small fry in my department were veterans. I would say to you further that I have employed in my department, three Civil War veterans and one Spanish War veteran.

"Your insinuations are made with such malicious disregard for the facts that they do not merit serious consideration."

Postoffice Efficiency Decreased By Low Pay

The salaries paid letter carriers are not enough to enable them to support their families according to American standards. Such a condition with its tendency to lower the morals and efficiency of the post office service is intolerable in a great, rich nation like our own. Hence the justice of the bill now before Congress asking for a modest increase of $600 —making their maximum salary $2,800 a year.



James F. Hoey

Take the case of James F. Hoey, a carrier on a State street route, who has been in the service twenty-five years. His present route is in State street. He pays $40 a month rent, and supports his wife and two children on $1,800 a year.

Potomac Dam Breaks, Flooding Many Towns; Half Million Loss

Hagerstown, Md., March 29. (I.N.S.).—A great wall of water is rushing down the Potomac River this afternoon, flooding many Western Maryland towns.

Already a half million dollars damage has been done. The entire Georges Creek section is under water by the breaking of the Stony River dam.

Many residents at Piedmont and Westernport Fort have been forced to flee for their lives. Wills Creek is overflowing, flooding many streets in Cumberland. Railroad service has been suspended entirely on the Western Maryland system west of here.

Dies of Injuries

James Crispo, twenty years old, of No. 50 Hinckley street, Somerville, died at Somerville Hospital today of injuries received when he was struck by a Boston & Maine freight train beneath the Lowell street bridge in Somerville.

BIG MOB STORMS HOTEL ASTOR BALLROOM

Barred From Fakers' Club Revels, Men and Women Turn on Police

New York, Mar. 29.—Unsuccessful in an effort to enter the ballroom of the Hotel Astor at dawn today when 4,000 revellers were making merry at the costume ball of the Fokers' Club, several hundred persons whose pursuit of pleasure in several cabarets had been interrupted by the closing hour, stormed the lobby and started a free-for-all fight which turned the ballroom into a mob scene.

Scores of men and women, in evening attire, stopped in the lobby by a cordon of private detectives and police who had been told to permit no further entrance into the ever crowded ballroom, tried to bludgeon their way forward.

One of the disappointed visitors started trouble by hurling an ornamental statue at a detective. Others followed his example until the lob by was filled with flying missiles.

A fight thereupon started in the ballroom.

It was several hours before complete peace had been restored and the masqueraders sent home.

WEEKS NAMED IN BOSCH MAGNETO CASE

the investigation into the Mitsui Aircraft case, in connection with which Gaston B. Means has testified and Smith received $100,000, was blocked by A. F. Meyers, a special assistant to the Attorney-General after it had been discovered that the company owed the government many millions.

Scaife said he had been told by Guy D. Goff, then Assistant Attorney-General, that Meyers received his appointment through former Attorney-General George B. Wickersham, whose law firm, he said, was retained by the Mitsui Company.

The references to the second $100,000 transaction were made by Nicholas Chilton, a New York restaurant man, who testified that he had overheard a conversation in a hotel here about a "whiskey deal" which Mortimer got $100,000 from a party in Pittsburgh."

He knew none of the details and when committee members put him through a course of questioning "to test his memory" he said he couldn't even remember whether he had been arrested in New York for a liquor law violation.

ACCUSES MEYERS

W. J. Burns, Scaife said, had told him the placing of Meyers over the aircraft cases was "an outrage." He said Burns told him to "go on and get the crooks." And Goff also had told him to "go ahead and catch the crooks no matter how big they are."

But soon afterward, he said, he was transferred to a bread investigation.

"Meyers took the aircraft matter out of my hands," Scaife said, "when we got down to the audit showing upwards of $25,000,000 which ought to be returned. I saw we were going to be blocked."

"Meyers is the man who blocked you, and Mitsui & Co., in the contract which gave the $100,000 to Gaston B. Means to be carried to Jess Smith?" Senator Ashurst asked.

"Yes, but I don't know how about the $100,000," said Scaife.

The Mitsui Company, the witness said, was "part of the invisible government, and its operations were "very extensive."

REPORTED SPYING

Scaife charged that in 1921, "when relations between Japan and America were critical," that "agents of this company" (Mitsui) were conducting an espionage. A report on it was made to the Department of Justice, he testified, "and nothing was done about it."

He said that at first he "couldn't get to the Attorney-General" to talk about the blocking of his efforts.

"I went to the Attorney-General," Scaife said, "and I only got there through Tom Felder."

The only result of his visit to Daugherty, the witness said, was that he received offers from "the other side" to retain him. He produced a letter from Felder dated in May, 1922, saying Scaife could "prepare" himself to be retained in the Bosch Magneto case.

Senator Jones brought out that this letter was dated a month after Scaife resigned from the Department of Justice.

"Of course, Mr. Wickersham couldn't officially put anybody in the Department of Justice," Senator Jones put in. "How did you know Meyers was put there by him?"

GERMAN PLOT

"Of course, it was general knowledge of the Department of Justice," Scaife said.

Chairman Brookhart asked if it was Scaife's theory that the "control of the whole aircraft program was put into the hands of men who operated it in the interest of the German government?"

"Parts of it were," was the reply.

Scaife read from a report he said he had made to Daugherty in March, 1922, declaring the Department of Justice "has ceased to function except as a first aid to crooks." He said he gave this report to Felder, who took it to Daugherty.

Afterward, he said, Felder told him that had gone over the matter with Harry," telling him that "a storm is going to break over your head."

Daugherty then sent for him, he said, told him to "go and forget it, to go after anybody," and promised to have a conference with him and Goff.

"Did that conference ever occur," asked Senator Jones.

"No, sir."

"Did you ever get any word from the Attorney-General?"

"Never."

He added that Gaston B. Means had told him that Jess Smith had told Means that "we were going to kid him (Scaife) along."

$10,000 FEE

Means also had put him in touch with Felder, Scaife said, and they told him they were going to have Scaife retained by aircraft and other companies he had been investigating.

Felder had suggested a $10,000 retainer fee to him in the Bosch Magneto case, Scaife said.

"What reply did you make to Felder?" asked Senator Ashurst.

"I haven't replied yet."

Senator Jones remarked that "the witness has brought in the first direct testimony connecting the Attorney-General in this inquiry.

"Was anything ever done in the Bosch Magneto case?" asked Chairman Brookhart.

"No, nothing substantial," Scaife said.

"This was a property seized by the alien property custodian and sold by A. Mitchell Palmer, then in charge, for a grossly inadequate sum. Martin Kerns, a friend of Mr. Palmer, was the purchaser. Mr. Means worked up all the evidence about this," Senator Jones said that the Bosch Magneto sale was financed through Hornblower & Weeks."

He read a telegram alleged to have gone from Kerns to Pritzen, an officer of the Bosch Company.

WEEKS SAW HUGHES

"Why don't you take J. W. Weeks to Daugherty and get a quietus on all this stuff?" the message read.

"Now, this fact ought to be put in the record," Senator Jones said, "that Mr. Weeks, now Secretary of War, is not now a member of the firm of Hornblower & Weeks, and has been for some years. Isn't that true?"

"I understand that is so," Scaife replied. "But Secretary Weeks went to Secretary Hughes and asked his opinion on this transaction."

In the Lincoln Motor case, Scaife said $9,000,000 in government overpayments were involved, "and two senators" intervened to have the matter held up when it was "a race of just a few days" with the statute of limitations. Neither is now in the Senate, he added.

But Representative Woodruff, Republican, Michigan, made a speech in the House, urging action, Scaife said, and "the case was taken up and filed in time."

Instead of examining confidential files of the Justice Department in public, as originally planned, the committee decided to consider them in executive session.

The files in question related to alleged activities in this country on behalf of Mexican revolutionists in Lower California, and had figured in the correspondence between President Coolidge and Daugherty, resulting in the latter's retirement.

William J. Burns, chief of the Justice Department's bureau of investigation, had been summoned to lay the files before the committee, but instead of questioning him the committee put on the stand Nicholas Chilton of New York, who testified regarding Daugherty's relations to Howard Mannington and Orr.

The witness said he had met Will A. Orr of New York at "the little green house on K street."

GOT CONTRACTS

Mannington lived at the "green house," he said. He told of "interceding" with Mannington to obtain an appointment as commissioner of immigration for Philip Giordiano, also of New York, and of being taken to see Daugherty.

Chairman Brookhart questioning the witness in the absence of the committee prosecutor, Burton K. Wheeler, who was kept at home by illness, asked if Mannington had asked for money?

"Nothing was ever said about money," Cinino replied.

He had acted on behalf of Giordiano and Mannington acted for Immigration Commissioner at New York and for Commissioner-General of Immigration, the witness said.

Cinino also sought to procure through Daugherty stenographic contracts for the New York Federal courts, he said, for two stenographers named Pries and Moore.

"They paid me money from time to time," Cinino said of Pries and Moore. "It ran from $1,000 to $1,500."

He said they got some of the stenographic contracts.

"GOT 100,000"

Chairman Brookhart took up the New York bootlegging conspiracy. The witness said he had complained to Mannington because "everybody seemed to be getting something out of it" and Mannington told him "to go over to New York and see what I could do."

He then went to see Orr, who told him "there was nothing doing."

Cinino also sought to get some of his friends appointed prohibition agents.

"Now you met Orr and Goront during their trial, and Orr told you everything was fixed?" Chairman Brookhart asked, referring to prosecutions on the liquor permit transactions.

"No, he told me it would be all right," Cinino said.

Asked if he remembered a whiskey deal "where Mortimer got $100,000," the witness replied:

"I overheard a conversation where one of the fellows said Mortimer got $100,000 from a party in Pittsburgh."

A man named "Grant" was mentioned, Cinino went on, as having been "double-crossed" by Mortimer in the $100,000 deal. He said he understood the money was to be paid by a "certain party in Pittsburgh."

Cinino then told also of having heard of a "$50,000 deal" in parolos from a Federal penitentiary, but could give no details.

SUPPOSED EX-VASSAR STUDENT

"Kate Eliot," Found Starving in Hut, Refuses to Talk

Six bankbooks, a will and a faded photograph of a girl in Vassar cap and gown are clues held by the State police to a strange mystery which surrounds a woman recluse of Norwell, now recovering from exhaustion and hunger in the Plymouth County Hospital at South Hanson.

The woman refuses to talk. She is known in Norwell as Kate Eliot, the eccentric occupant of a deserted woodchopper's cabin.

The six bankbooks found hidden in the mattress of the bed from which officers of the State Constabulary removed her bear the name of "Catherine Hull."

They show that Catherine Hull has $6000 on deposit at six Boston savings banks, where twenty-five years ago she gave her address as No. 22 Harrison avenue.

WILL FOUND.

Finding of a will tucked away in a closet deepened the mystery. It is Kate Eliot's will, made when death seemed near a few days ago. It disposes of the $6000 in bank books as if they belonged to her, bequeathing them to a charitable institution.

Is Catherine Hull dead? Where did she die?

At a Boston bank it was learned that "Kate Hull" withdrew $50 from her account only last May. Her signature on the withdrawal slip compared satisfactorily with the signature made by the girl "Kate Hull" twenty-five years ago. But she refused to give her address.

The Harrison avenue house which once stood at No. 22 has long since given way to a business building.

ALIVE LAST MAY.

The bank records prove that Kate or Catherine Hull was alive last May, but since that time her bank books have somehow been transferred to Kate Eliot.

For a time authorities thought there was but one woman, using both names, but inquiry at Vassar College brought the following telegram in reply:

"Records here show both a Kate Eliot and a Catherine Hull listed among former students. Neither remained to be graduated."

Residents of Norwell recall that "Kate Eliot" came among them nearly twenty years ago and took possession of a ramshackle hut off the main road from Boston to Plymouth, slammed the door behind her and began leading her own life.

She made it plain to all that she desired no friends. Her past, she said, was nobody's business. And she was left alone.

STARVING IN HUT.

Years passed, until Corporal G. A. Soderberg of the State Constabulary noticed that for two days no smoke had curled from the chimney of the little shack. He knocked at the door.

"I mean you no harm," he shouted. "I am here to help you."

"Thank God!" came the voice from inside and Soderberg crashed his way in and found the emaciated form on the rude bed. There was no fire in the stove, no wood in the woodbox, no water and no food in the house.

As she recovered strength today at the hospital, the woman volunteered the information that she has a sister in New York, but would say no more. She refuses to talk of Kate Eliot or of Catherine Hull.

N. Y. DELEGATION GREETED BY POPE

Rome, March 29 (AP).—Fifty members of the New York party that accompanied Archbishop Hayes to Rome to witness his elevation to the Cardinalate were received in special audience by Pope Pius in the throne room of the Vatican today. Cardinal Hayes introduced each one to His Holiness, who paused and chatted for a few moments after the introduction.

In a short informal address, the Pontiff expressed admiration for the loyalty which had been shown to the New York prelate, and he blessed not only the members of the party but also their families, especially the children, since, he declared, "of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." In closing he said he hoped the day was not far distant when all your people will be one flock under one shepherd."

SINGER DEFIES COMPLAINING NEIGHBORS

few of her neighbors do not appreciate head tones and that sort of thing.

"Yes, sir, it is those head tones that have caused all of the trouble. You see, head tones play an important part in the vocal accomplishments of all good contraltos. If you do not cultivate them in their proper way you will never reach the peak in the operatic world. And so, Miss Leonora has been cultivating them. She is going to keep on cultivating them until she reaches her goal, despite anything the neighbors may say."

But, Eleonora has conceded one point. She has changed her hours of practice. Where she formally warbled at 7 o'clock in the morning, she now does not start until ten o'clock. She has also cut down her afternoon hours to just one hour—from two to three o'clock.

When the reporter called today Eleonora had just returned from her early morning horseback ride through the Fenway. She was dressed in a trim little black and white checked pair of riding breeches, a white blouse and red sleeveless jacket, and presented what the French would call a very chic appearance.

"You know, it is too bad" declared Eleonora "that my neighbors don't appreciate art. They really don't know the difference between art and the mooing of cattle. At least it would so seem judging by the petition they signed.

"Would you believe it, they called my vocal efforts 'noise.' That shows what they know about music. I admit that I was not singing the songs they might understand. In fact I have not been singing songs at all. I have been practicing head tones. Madame Ferribini, my teacher, told me I must practice them. Well, my neighbors probably do not know that there is such a thing as head tones.

"I always rise in the morning at five o'clock and study before most people are out of bed. I used to start my practicing at about 6:30. I always practiced very softly in the morning. They could not possibly have heard me. But I have stopped that. I do not start practicing until ten o'clock now. I hope that makes them feel better.

"They complained about my singing in the kitchen. Well, I am domestic as well as artistic, and as the acoustic properties in the kitchen are very favorable, I sometimes improve my time by practicing my headtones there while doing the dishes. But it seems a shame if I can't sing while I work. I am sure it sounds better than the clatter of dishpans.

"Madame Calve told me that my voice will take me to the operatic stage if I continue working. That gave me the desire to go on. I have a wonderful teacher now, and she tells me the same as Madame Calve. So I am not going to let a few neighbors stop me. I shall try not to disturb them, however.

School-house Burned

Versailles, Ct., March 29.—Fire today destroyed a building owned by John Grodiskey, occupied by a store and pool room, G. H. Tetrault's garage, also a barn and public school building. The loss was estimated at $25,000. Norwich and Taftville furnished assistance.

rolled up high, touching the sixty-mile mark. Shot after shot was fired by the officer at the fleeing car, but the Essex, unscathed, gradually drew ahead and disappeared.

The next seen of the Essex was in Danvers when the blonde girl, still screaming and still battling the red-haired driver, succeeded in making her escape from the machine.

Sobbing, she ran into the Lyons garage, while the Essex whirled away. Crying, the girl begged Esmond Lyons, eighteen, son of the proprietor, to get a taxi and chase the Essex with her. She declared the Essex had been stolen.

Lyons got his father's revolver and jumped into a machine with the girl. They chased the Essex along the Newburyport turnpike for some distance, but it outdistanced them.

At Newburyport the girl left Lyons in the car, saying she wanted to telephone. She called Inspector Lehan of the Salem police, told him that she was the girl battling in the car in Lafayette street, and asked if a satchel containing lingerie and women's shoes had been picked up in Derby street. The police had picked up the satchel which she said fell out of the car.

The blonde told the inspector she would go back to Salem immediately and report to the police. Then she came out and had Lyons drive her to Beverly. Here she said she had an appointment with a friend in Boston, paid Lyons $10 and boarded a Boston-bound train. She did not report to the Salem police.

GIRL STUDENT TO WED AMHERST CLASSMATE

Miss Ruth Guild Flint, twenty three, of No. 1236 Commonwealth avenue, filed an application today for a license to wed Alfred F. Ox of Groton. Both are students at Massachusetts Agricultural College, at Amherst.

"We are going to be married at Amherst on the very day we at graduated in June," said Miss Flint. "Alfred and I met at college. I am studying fruit growing."

She is the daughter of Dr. George C. Flint. Guy is the son of Heaman H. Guy of Groton.

FIND LOST BOYS AFTER NIGHT HUNT

Ware Children Wander Deep Into Woods Before Rescued by Searching Party

Ware, March 29.—After nearly an all-night search, the two children of Adam Wosnik, four and five years old, who wandered away into the woods yesterday, were found at 3 o'clock this morning after a searching party of thirty persons, including police of Ware and Hardwick, had searched.

They were sitting under a tree on the edge of a swamp, wide awake and without harm. The search covered eight square miles in three townships.

Wosnik, whose wife is ill, went into the woods to work yesterday, taking the two boys, George and Joseph, and the baby. He did not miss the boys until nightfall. Hurrying home with the baby he secured help and with neighbors and police returned to the woods where the night was spent fruitlessly, though footprints of the children in the snow were seen from time to time.

Finally John Spec of Ware, working apart from the other searchers, discovered the children. In attempting to lead them out of the woods Spec himself became lost and wandered about between two and three hours.

FRENCH SHIP SENDS S. O. S. OFF VIRGINIA

Norfolk, V., March 29.—The Coast Guard Cutter Manning left here today in response to distress signals from the French steamship Tours, reported to be leaking about fifty-five miles off Cape Charles.

The vessel was en route from Neuvitas, Cuba, to Marseilles with a cargo of sugar. She put in here during the hurricane and sent out an SOS call yesterday. A radio message early today reported she was in tow of the Edward Luckenbach, but later dispatch stated the tow line had parted and that the Tours was taking in water rapidly. The Luckenbach is standing by.

DYNAMITE HOMES OF 2 HARD COAL MINERS

Scranton, Pa., March 29.—State troopers and county detectives rushed to Inkerman, Pa., looking for the persons who discharged dynamite early today under the home of two anthracite mine workers. Two explosions the following the other quickly, seriously damaged the homes of Stanley Gadiski and John Rezanus, and smashed windows in a dozen other dwellings. No one was seriously hurt. There have now been five dynamitings in the last year.

3 MINERS ENTOMBED IN GAS EXPLOSION

Clarksburg, W. Va., March 29.—Three men are known to have been entombed today when an explosion of gas wrecked a section of the Pendshaw mine near Shinnston. Among them was Superintendent McDill.

A heavy rainfall flooded the Bigmon valley and when the men reported rushing into the wrecked mine. Volunteer rescue workers were making an effort to sink a shaft into the workings.

Rome—The repairs to Stuart MacLaren's round-the-world airplane are not expected to be completed until tomorrow, when the British aviator and his companions hope to resume their flight.

Sofia—King Boris has signed the two Bulgaro-American treaties dealing with naturalization and extradition, recently ratified by the Sobranje.

Madrid—King Alfonso penetrated the flood area near Aranjuez on horse when his automobile stalled. He visited the villages, inundated in consequence of torrential rains, and promised help to the inhabitants.

Paris—Beginning tonight, the difference in time between Paris and New York will be four hours instead of five, as the clocks here will be moved forward one hour. When "daylight saving" goes into effect in New York the difference in time will swing back to five hours.

London.—Sir Charles Villers Stanford, noted Irish composer, died today at his home here. His light opera, "Shamus O'Brien," had a long run in London in the '90s. His choral writings are accounted his strongest works, notably his choral ballard "Revenge," and his five "Songs of the Sea," for soloist male chorus and orchestra.

'TIS THE LIFE FOR MAGNUS' WIFE

SENATOR'S HELPMATE GOING BACK TO THE FARM

MRS. JOHNSON QUITS SOCIETY TO MILK COWS

Senator's Wife Finds Farm Life Preferable to That of Washington

Washington, March 29. — Senator Magnus Johnson of Minnesota is about to become a "bachelor." That is to say, Mrs. Johnson finds it impossible to get accustomed to the climate and she has decided to gather up Lie "little Johnsons" and go back home to their farm.

She will leave next Tuesday so as to reach home in time for the Spring planting. She will leave "Magnus to shift for himself," she said.

The Senator has made no plans "for a home or habitation" while Mrs. Johnson is away. He said he will probably get a small apartment and "go it alone, doing his own cooking."

For some time Mrs. Johnson has been discontented with life in Washington. In the first place, she had much trouble in keeping the furnace going in her little bungalow at Takoma Park, a suburb. She had never used coal, and on more than one occasion she let the fire go out, with the result that waterpipes were frozen, causing much trouble and inconvenience. She said:

"While we have much colder weather in Minnesota than we had here this Winter, we were always able to keep warm out there by burning wood. This is the first time that I ever used coal, and it cannot compare with wood as a fuel.

Mrs. Johnson is looking forward to her return home with the enthusiasm of a school girl. She longs to go out and milk the cows again. When she came here last December to take her place among the Senate ladies, it was the first time she had been away overnight from the farm. She said she has tried her best to fall into official life here and to become a part of it, but finds it impossible.

BERGDOLL REFUSES TO RETURN TO U. S

Eberbach, Germany, March 29.—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the American draft evader, whose departure from his hotel here early in the week was responsible for reports that he was on his way to the United States, returned to the hotel today. He had been on a motor trip to the Black Forest and stated definitely that he was not making any preparations to return to the United States to face the charges against him.

PAUL REVERE'S RIDE UP-TO-DATE THIS YEAR

Two aeroplanes of the National Guard at the Boston air port will fly over the horseback route of Paul Revere's ride, from Boston to Lexington, on April 19, Patriots' Day. Preparations for this event were announced at the office of the aviation section of the army at army base, South Boston, by Captain L. B. Knight.

A rehabilitated veteran of the 101st Infantry seeks a position as a chauffeur.

Before the war this veteran drove his own car for a number of years and is thoroughly familiar with automobiles and is qualified as an excellent driver.

He was given temporary employment by a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce by whom he is highly recommended.

If you need a chauffeur, call Congress 7600, the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and ask for Case No. 112.

SOMERVILLE BOY IS KILLED BY TRUCK

Six-year-old Harold Nickerson of No. 35 Parkdale street, Somerville, is dead at Somerville Hospital from injuries received when he was run over by an automobile truck near his home today. Anthony Beardi of Linden street, Somerville, driver of the truck, was arrested.

"Morally" Drunk, New Alibi for Arrested Auto Drivers

When is a man "morally" drunk?

And what's the difference?

Murray Lazarus tried to "sell" his brand new alibi when arraigned before Judge Connelly in Waltham Court on a charge of driving his automobile while under the influence of liquor and with being drunk.

Officer McKenna said he arrested Lazarus in front of a Waltham gasoline station after following the zig-zag course of the car.

The defendant was fined $100 when he was unable to differentiate for Judge Connelly's benefit between the "moral" state of intoxication and the plain garden variety of soose. The drunk charge was filed.

Fined, Carried Loaded Gun

Edward L. King of No. 72 Sterling street Cambridge, was fined $100 in the East Cambridge District Court today for carrying a loaded revolver. King was arrested early today by Metropolitan Park Police officers after an argument in East Cambridge. The police chased him a number of blocks before he was captured.

DROPS DEAD AT 100; NEVER HAD DOCTOR

West Warren, March 29.—As he walked to a barn to get his toolchest, John Jurack, 100 years old, dropped dead today. Jurack, who boasted he had never required a doctor, built a garage and finished up his Winter's rest by splitting five cords of wood.

$11,000 BAIL FOR SHOTS AT COP

Harry Burns and Roommate Are Accused of Attempt to Kill

Harry Burns of No. 105 Broadway, South Boston, was held for the Grand Jury in a total of $11,100 bail today when arraigned in South Boston Court.

He was charged with assault with intent to kill Patrolman Patrick Flannery of the Athens street station, with breaking and entering, and with carrying a revolver without a permit.

Thomas J. McDonough, roommate of Burns, was charged with unlawful appropriation of an automobile, breaking and entering and with refusing to stop when ordered to do so by a policeman. His case was continued until March 31 and he was held in $1000.

Patrolman Flannery saw an automobile coming down West Third street, South Boston, early on the morning of March 27. Being suspicious he ordered the driver to stop, but the car speeded up and turned into Athens street near the police station.

Police claim one of the men leaned out of the car and fired two shots at Flannery. The man who fired, the police say, was Burns. The car was got located by police on Shawmut avenue. A patrolman fired two shots, another officer joined in and fired a shot.

Later the car was found abandoned on Rochester street, South End. Police went to the room of Burns and McDonough later that morning and arrested the pair.

SAYS LEAGUE HAS AVERTED FIVE WARS

San Francisco, Calif., March 29.—The League of Nations has settled five threatened wars, arrested an epidemic of typhus in Russia, rescued 450,000 prisoners of war who were living in Russian prisons, and performed other great deeds successfully in the interests of all humanity, John H. Clarke, former associate justice of the United States Supreme Court said in an address here. The league has rescued Austria from Bolshevism and bankruptcy and has proved to be such an effective instrumentality for peace and order that 54 of the 62 nations of the world have joined it, Justice Clarke said.

DECLARE WAR ON BOOTLEGS IN CAPITAL

Police Call Washington "Wettest" in the Land; to Show "No Quarter" in Drive

Washington, March 29.—Aroused by charges that Washington is the wettest city in the country, the Capital's police officials again announced today a relentless war on bootleggers.

Fresh from a series of conferences in Philadelphia with Smedley Butler, Police Superintendent Sullivan declared that "rum-running, drinking and gambling" must go.

"There will be no quarter," he said. "The city is to be swept clean. If some of our more prominent citizens fall into the net, they must suffer the consequences."

But he added that under the law Washington policemen can only gather evidence of liquor law violations, leaving arrests to federal agents. He said it was to be hoped something would be done about it.

50 MEN BURIED BY SNOW; TWO PERISH

Salt Lake City, Utah, March 29 (I.N.S.).—Fifty track workers on the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad were buried under a huge snowslide in Provo Canyon.

Forty-eight men, many badly injured, have been dug out by rescue parties. Two men are reported missing.

LINERS LAUNCH PASSENGER RATE WAR

Cunard Company Cuts Tickets in Liverpool Service; Others Are Expected to Follow

Rumors of a transatlantic passenger rate war were circulated in Boston shipping circles today. Inquiries at the offices of the big steamship lines elicited the information that the Cunard line has made cuts of from 10 to 15 per cent. on all first class accommodations on ships in the Liverpool service above the minimum rate.

No changes are announced in minimum first class rates, nor in second or third class rates. So far as can be learned, no other line is now cutting rates.

Cunard officials said the cut rates do not apply to ships eastbound, sailing late in June and early in July, nor westbound sailing in late August and early September, these ships practically being sold out at the old rate.

The ships in the Boston service which will be affected by the cut are the Franconia, Samaria, Laconia and Scythia. The rates go into effect April 27.

moon, for lack of money to buy candles, and attending lectures before daybreak, was much bigger, for its date, than a 40,000 student university would be now. Modern science makes anything possible.

BUTLER BROTHERS, one of the biggest Chicago concerns, withdrew firearms from its list of articles for sale, although it has done a business in that line of a million and a half yearly. This shows public spirit. But criminals can get revolvers, plenty of them, just as they get plenty of bootleg whiskey. You can make it difficult for decent men to get weapons for self-defence, but not hard for criminals to get the same weapons for attack.

OTTO H. KAHN, who once was poor and now has a wagonload of money, did not lose his common sense in accumulating his money. His son wants to play the saxaphone, and that must be agony to an artistic man like Kahn, who really knows something about music.

But he says "anything is better than loafing," and encourages his son to organize his saxaphone orchestra.

Mr. Pinchot set an example to other fathers when he allowed his daughter to develop her talent on the stage, in the marvelous production, "The Miracle."

It is a million times better to let your daughter work and develop the power within her than to keep her sitting around, waiting for some little person to come along and marry her.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE in a gentle New England sermon to a group of small boys, tells them, "Work hard and behave yourselves." There would be no advice much harder for boys to take. Children are savages; ravages hate work.

BOYS ARE full of pent-up energy, and that makes "behaving themselves" most difficult. The boy that behaves himself most perfectly, sad to relate, is quite often the boy that amounts to the least later on.

And the boy that behaves himself most outrageously, from the point of view of some very good old lady, often turns out to be the ruler and leader of other men. However, "work hard and behave yourselves" is good moral advice.

A REPUBLIC will probably be proclaimed in Persia. It is one thing to proclaim a republic; another thing to have a real one. It certainly will be a republic with an interesting background—old Persian kings surveying the battlefield from their high thrones of gold, the Persian ruler that had to be told by one of his slaves where and what Greece was, then ordering that slave, "Remind me to go over and destroy that little people at some convenient moment." Then the unhappy "great king," with his hundreds of thousands of men, his fighting elephants, his great palaces and his loads of gold, hunted to his miserable death by Alexander, who came from barbarous Macedonia, with only 30,000 men.

Good luck to the new republic of Persia. It has an interesting past.

THE Radio Corporation of America announces that its sales have increased 99.8 per cent. in one year, rising from $14,830,856 to $26,394,789. Two years ago the receipts of the company were $426,798. These sales, of course, do not include the "sets" that amateurs build, but the receipts of the company sending and receiving radio messages. Many of the world's nations are now united by radio. That ought to help civilization a little.

BEFORE long all the civilized individuals of the world will be united by radio, and that will help civilization a great deal.

There will still remain the problem of hundreds of millions of savages and barbarians. How are you going to civilize them? It can't be done without raising their frontal angle, and that takes many centuries.

Submarine Ball Next Month Drawing Smart Set Interest, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

LARGELY responsible for next month's Submarine Ball is Joseph Linden Smith, who is quite as original as he is artistic.

The ball will be held on April 25 at Horticultural Hall, the proceeds to benefit the Children's Art Center.

It will be a costume affair and all sorts of inhabitants of the sea will make their appearance. The invitation itself offers a variety of possible disguises, suggesting everything from the dolphin to the salmon.

Mrs. N. P. Hallowell

Henry G. Vaughan is to act as master of ceremonies, others on his committee including Mesdames N. Penrose Hallowell, Gorham Brooks, Charles M. Cabot, Reginald Foster, George L. Foote, F. L. W. Richardson, Charles G. Loring and Joseph Linden Smith, as well as Messrs. Holker Abbott, F. Murray Forbes, William Stanley Parker and Joseph Linden Smith.

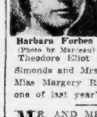
The hours of the patriotical ball are from 9:30 until 2 o'clock, and a limited number of supper tickets may be purchased.

A PETITE brunette with much personality is Mrs. Dudley Ranney (Margaret Wellington) of, Wellesley Farms.

Despite the fact that Mrs. Ranney is a matron, it isn't at all difficult to picture her in the role of "Estelle Stewart," a debutante, which she will play in "Wake Up," next week's Vincent Club show.

It will be remembered that Mrs. Ranney was the dashing little French heroine of "Mlle. Modiste," recently staged by the Junior League.

APROPOS of "Wake Up," one of the dalntiest dancers in this widely-heralded Vincent offering, will be Miss Barbara Forbes, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Forbes of West Cedar street.



Barbara Forbes

Miss Forbes, who has made fancy dancing somewhat of a hobby, has a penchant for frocks reminiscent of grandmother's day, which are most becoming to her very youthful looks.

Miss Forbes will add much to the charm of the Dresden China dance. Others taking part in this number include Miss Martha Bigelow, her engagement to Theodore Eliot recently announced; Mrs. Landgon Simonds and Mrs. John Holt and Miss Margery Richardson, easily one of last year's prettiest buds.

MR. AND MRS. ALBERT C. BURRAGE, who have been spending the Winter in California, are planning to return East early next month.

"Orchidvale," the Beverly Farms estate of the Burrages, is known far and wide for the rare and exquisite orchids which are raised there.

Society Notes

MRS. ROLAND NICKERSON and Mrs. Samuel Powers Sears are among the Bostonians recently arriving in New York at the Hotel Lorraine.

Mrs. Walter Dabney is giving a luncheon on Thursday at the Hotel Somerset. Mrs. Dabney has just announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Susan Dabney, to Leverett Bradley of Brimmer street.

Mrs. Huntington Frothingham, (Marie Lee) has returned to New York following a visit to Palm Beach. Her mother, Mrs. George Lee of Beverly Farms will be in Palm Beach late into the season at the Breakers.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jordan of Beacon street will sail for France the latter part of April. They spent the Winter at Palm Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harte of Boston have been spending a few days in New York at the Ritz-Carlton.

The Speaker of the House and Mrs. Frederick Gillett were guests of honor at a reception given on Wednesday evening at the Congressional Club.

ATTORNEY JOHNSTON NOT DEFENDANT

In a story in the late editions of Friday's American the name of Attorney J. C. Johnston was inadvertently given as one of the defendants in the suit against the Phalanx Orchestra Club of Roxbury.

An officer of the club was on trial charged with keeping and exposing liquor in the club rooms and Mr. Johnston appeared in court as his legal advisor. The same story also stated that one Patrolman Twain testified that a woman ran down the steps of the club house on the night of Feb. 4 and threw her arms about his neck and insisted on his taking a ride with her in her automobile. It was Patrolman Schumann who gave this testimony, not an Officer Tobin.

The American deeply regrets the publication of Attorney Johnston's name as being a defendant in the case and also hastens to set right the matter of the testimony of the policemen who appeared as witnesses.

FIGHTS WITH WIFE, SWALLOWS POISON

Bartholomew Brogan, thirty-one, of No. 2 Liwn street, Roxbury, was taken to the City Hospital from his home after he had been found unconscious in the bath room. After an investigation the police stated that the man drained a two ounce bottle of poison following a dispute with his wife. His name is on the danger list.

NEW SYMPHONY LEADER COMING IN SEPTEMBER

Koussevitzky, Russian Conductor, to Sail for Boston Next Autumn

Serge Koussevitzky, the next conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will come to America next Autumn.

Koussevitzky is completing his series of concerts as guest conductor of the London Symphony Orchestra. At these concerts, in March and April, he is conducting Beethoven's Ninth Symphony with chorus, symphonies by Brahms, Haydn, Schubert, Boccherini and Tchaikovsky.

He will go to Italy and conduct symphony concerts in Milan and Rome, and to Barcelona to conduct the Wagnerian Orchestra there. In May he will return to Paris to complete his series of famous "Koussevitzky Concerts" and conduct performances of "Boris Godunov" at the Grand Opera. Thence he will probably go to London to conduct a short opera season there before taking his Summer vacation.

Serge Koussevitzky was born at Tver, Russia, in 1874. At twelve he conducted the orchestra of the town theatre.

REARRESTED AS HE LEAVES DEER ISLAND

George Ray, who is known to Boston police under several aliases, no sooner stepped from the city boat today, after finishing a nine months' term at Deer Island for burglary, than he was arrested on a New York complaint charging him with being a fugitive from justice. Ray, it is alleged, was serving four years in a New York prison, when released on parole. The complaint charges that his arrest and imprisonment in Boston constituted a violation of his parole. He is locked up pending a hearing in Brighton court on Tuesday.

OFFER REWARDS OF $14,200 IN BAUER CASE

'Death Car' Owner Hunted by Police in Brutal Murder of Young Wife

New York, March 29.—Rewards totalling $14,200 have been offered for information leading to the arrest of the man who killed Mrs. Maud Bauer. It was announced today as the police dissipated their latest clew. The rewards include two of $5,000 each and one of $3,500.

New York, March 29 (I.N.S.).—Confident they have found the "death car" used by the murderer of Mrs. Maude Bauer, police today concentrated on the search for the owner of the bullet-marked Ford sedan discovered at Lynbrook, L. I.

The car, with two bullets imbedded in it, and a woman's belt caught on the door hinge, answers the description of the sedan in which Mrs. Bauer accepted a lift from a short, swarthy stranger on Staten Island, after her own automobile broke down Tuesday.

A few minutes later she was shot to death and stabbed and her body left beside the lonely road and the mysterious stranger and his car disappeared.

Two flattened bullets imbedded in the car are of the same calibre as those that killed Mrs. Bauer. The embroidered belt was caught in the rear door. Mrs. Bauer sat in the rear seat of the automobile when she was lured to her death.

One link in the newly discovered chain of evidence is defective, apparently. Employes at the Lynbrook garage, where the car was found, said it was left by a "tall stranger."

This discrepancy did not lessen the confidence of police that they are at last on the trail of the killer. Until the car was discovered the only definite clews were two .25 calibre cartridge shells found near the spot where Mrs. Bauer's body was found.

These indicated nothing, however, except that she had not been shot in the car, as at first supposed.

John Hays Hammond Observes Birthday Monday; Send Card

John Hays Hammond

Comparisons are odious, but it is a well recognized fact that one man is recognized today as one of the foremost, if not the leading mining engineer of the entire world. That man is John Hays Hammond, resident of Gloucester and Washington.

Mr. Hammond has lectured at Harvard, Yale and other leading universities. He has long been connected with government projects involving mining problems. He was born in California on March 31, 1855, but came East when a young man and was graduated from Yale.

12 ARE KILLED AS BIG STORM SWEEPS WEST

Scores Injured and Heavy Damage Done as Cyclones Sweep Five States

Cairo, Illinois, March 29 (I.N.S.).—Three little towns in McCracken County, Kentucky, have been wiped out by the wind storm which is still sweeping down from the northwest, according to reports reaching here. Towns named as destroyed are Heath, Maxon and Lamotte, whose total population is less than 1,000.

Kansas City, Mo., Mar. 29.—Twelve persons dead, between 75 and 100 injured, several probably fatally, and property damage estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars, is the toll of tornado and wind storms that swept parts of Oklahoma, Kansas City, Texas, Missouri and Illinois.

Eight persons were killed and more than seventy injured at Shawnee, Oklahoma, where two hundred homes were destroyed.

Four hundred students in a high school there narrowly avoided death or serious injury, when they were dismissed only a few minutes before the building was demolished. The janitor, the only person in the building, was unhurt. A small boy miraculously escaped death when at the first sign of the storm, he jumped into a refrigerator, shortly before his home was wrecked.

The storm, traveling in a northeasterly direction, struck Prague and Noble, Okla., injuring five persons and causing heavy property damage.

Only one death was reported in Kansas, a boy being killed by lightning at Goff. Damage running into thousands of dollars was caused at Harper, Attica, Elks Falls and at Griesfield.

Four persons were hurt at Vernon, Texas, and one at Alton, Ill.

Three person were killed and fifteen injured as the storm swept southeastern Missouri.

DR. ZEIGNER GIVEN 3 YEARS IN PRISON

Leipsic, Germany, March 29.—Dr. Zeigner, who headed the Communist-Socialist Cabinet in Saxony which was deposed some time ago by the Central German government, has been sentenced to three years' imprisonment and the loss of his civic rights for three years. He was convicted of bribery.

One of the allegations was that while Minister of Justice he pardoned prisoners in return for money and other presents.

STENOGRAPHER IS CHASED BY CONGRESSMAN

New Jersey Solon Who Pursued Girl in Corridor Is the Capital's Latest Scandal

Washington, March 29 (I.N.S.).—A new "scandal" broke out today in scandal filled Washington.

Members of the Control Commission that terminates supervision over the House office building were investigating a story that a member of Congress from New Jersey chased his pretty stenographer down the corridor of the building late Thursday and left her hysterical in tears.

The corridor chase was witnessed by attaches of the offices, who have filed written statements with the building commission.

Friends of the girl declare she was not harmed by the congressman other than she was shocked and reduced to a state of hysteria. The congressman was intoxicated, according to the testimony of eye witnesses.

The names are withheld.

GREAT CAST OF ACTORS IN 'RED ROBE'

Cosmopolitan's Sumptuous Film Opens at Park Theatre Monday Night

The Cosmopolitan Corporation announces that it will present at the Park Theatre, beginning Monday night, one of the greatest achievements in its history to date—a sumptuous screen version of "Under the Red Robe," from Stanley Weyman's famous dramatic romance bearing the same title.

The new picture presents a remarkable cast of actors notable on the stage and screen, chosen also as being the best representatives of their art to interpret the celebrated personages of history who are the leading characters in this thrilling drama visualizing the vivid and colorful period in France during the reign of Louis XIII.

The statement is made that "Under the Red Robe" represents the most careful regard for historical accuracy in all of the important features of settings and costuming. The picture was nine months in the making, and the total cost represents an outlay that rarely has been exceed ed in the production of any film.

FORGIVES DAD AFTER ESCAPING DEATH CHAIR

Thomas Dickson, Freed, Still Loves Man Who Accused Him

Bridgeton, N. J., Mar. 29 (I.N.S.).—"My father tried to send me to the electric chair, but he didn't know what he was doing. I still love him and believe he was imposed upon."

Thomas Dickson, who was acquitted of the murder of his fifteen-year-old daughter Emma, today forgave his eighty-two-year-old father, "Uncle Benny," who was the chief witness against him and who told a vivid account of seeing his son beat the girl to death with a club.

Dickson was acquitted on the first ballot after the case went to the jury late yesterday afternoon.

U. S. OUTLOOK FOR OLYMPICS IS BOTH GOOD AND BAD

STAR MEN PROVE BIG PROBLEM

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

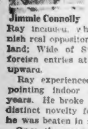
New York, March 29.—With the Olympic games coming on apace, encouragement and disappointment rubbed elbows as a result of the indoor track and field campaign just concluded.

Many fine prospects were uncovered at the short and middle distances, but not one American runner, Joie Ray included, who figured to furnish real opposition to Nurmi of Finland; Wide of Sweden, and other foreign entries at 1,500 meters and upward.

Ray experienced his most disappointing indoor season of recent years. He broke only one record, a distinct novelty for Ray, and twice he was beaten in scratch races.

Once the most consistent runner in America, he became a rank in-and-outer, giving a second-rate performance one night and a championship effort the next. Ray's most laudable achievement came in winning the Hunter Mile in 4.18 3-5, a new record for the distance.

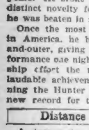
Jimmie Connolly



Ray Watson

Distance Men Flop

A teammate, Ray Watson, was likewise a disappointment. Watson looked like the best half-miler in the world late in the 1923 outdoor season, but couldn't win on the boards this Winter. It is said that he overtrained.



Leroy Brown

The same excuse is offered for Jake Driscoll, supposed to be America's leading quarter-miler. Except in isolated instances, Driscoll couldn't run fast enough to keep warm on our indoor tracks.

Illness has prevented Jimmy Connolly, former Intercollegiate champion, from running to form. Connolly did 4:17 4-5 for the mile during the 1923 indoor season, but couldn't beat 4:30 this Winter with a intercycle. He was another disappointment.

The situation, however, had its optimistic aspects. Loren Murchison gave one of the best exhibitions of any sprint season in winning 24 starts in 25, being beaten only by Chester Bowman, of Syracuse, an almost certain Olympic point winner. At the quarter Vernon Ascher did some great running until he broke down temporarily.

Joe Tierney showed a rare turn of speed in winning the Buermeyer 600 and the Casey 600, and Allen Woodring, perhaps the best 440 man of the lot, ran close to 49 seconds in a recent relay race after playing dead for most of the indoor season.

Lloyd Hahn

Schuyler Enck turned in a 1:54 3-5 effort for a world's indoor record at 800 meters and ran several creditable races at one mile, although slightly outshone there by loyd Hahn, a very promising youth from Boston. Hay, however, was the best miler of the season and obliged also with the fastest two miles of the campaign, closely followed by Verne Booth.

Field Work Good

Performances in the field events indicated an American landslide in the high jump and broad jump at Paris, with a heavy scoring in the pole vault and shotput.

Landon, Brown and Osborne should take the first three places in the high jump, barring accidents, and De Hart Hubbard and Al Ross are almost certain to finish one-two in the broad jump.

Libby, of Dartmouth; Owen, of Pennsylvania, and several Westerners were consistent "twelve-eight" men in the pole vault, and Ralph Hiller shot-putting was sufficiently good to warrant the belief that he may win that event.

The same may be said of Anderson, the Chicago hurdler, who broke several world's records before an injury laid him low.

BEN EGAN TO HELP SENATORS MANAGER

Oneida, N. Y., March 29.—"Ben" Egan, veteran catcher, was requested by Stanley Harris to act as assistant manager of the Washington American league baseball club.

Egan telegraphed terms at once and is expecting an order to leave for the South.

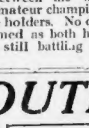
Huggins Will Send Yanks Into Batte Minus Captain

Miller Huggins will set a new fashion in baldom this season by sending his team into actions without a captain.



Miller Huggins

The boss of the world champion Yankees is of the opinion that a captain is a mere or less unnecessary thing in these days when the manager does the entire directing work. "I'm always on the field, usually on the coaching lines," said Huggins. "If the boys need advice they usually ask me, not the captain. So why a captain?"

BARRY HAS LOT OF PROMISING PLAYERS

Worcester, March 29.—Coach Jack Barry has his Holy Cross base ball team working out every day in the cage in anticipation of another championship season.

Jack Barry

There is every indication that this year's team will surpass that of last season as there are only two vacancies in the regular nine and they are being filled by men who are considered better performers than the two men who have graduated.

Dugan is gone from right but Buck Freeman, his successor, is every bit as good in the field and much better with the willow.

Joe Morrisey, former Providence College star, and McEntire, a Philadelphia lad to whom Connie Mack offered a contract, are having a merry battle for Jeff Daugherty's position at first.

TEN-MILE ROAD RACE PLANS COMPLETE

The Cathedral Young Men's Catholic Association are completing plans for the ten-mile road race on the afternoon of April 12. Already twenty entries have been received by Manager Frank J. Keating, who says that a record breaking list will be obtained by the South End Club when that list is closed.

Although there are plenty of [illegible] runs on the official books of the N. E. A. A. U., the Cathedral event is one of the classics of the spring for the long distance men.

The two star entries received are those of the Hebican brothers of Dorchester. These two boys time and again have been the whole works in races through the South End and Dorchester.

Representative Hayes of the South End has donated a trophy for the first athlete of Ward 4 who breaks across the finish line.

Any individuals, or organizations wishing to secure entry blanks may communicate with Frank J. Keating Cathedral Y. M. C. A., No. 75 Union Park street.

Exterminator to Rattle His Old Bones for Another Purse

TRACK-WORN, race-scarred Exterminator, owned by Willis Sharpe Kilmer, will drag his old frame to the starting post once more tomorrow afternoon in an effort to snatch the major portion of the $40,000 Coffroth Handicap purse at Tia Juana. "Old Bones" has won $248,946 in seven years. If he is placed in Sunday's classic, Exterminator will pass Man-o'-War's record of $249,465. However, Zev is supreme in purse winnings, with a total of $296,465. But even this remarkable record is threatened by the venerable Exterminator, which cost his owner only $15,000.

CLONIE TAIT MAY GET LEONARD GO

New York, March 29.—Eddie Mead, manager of Clonie Tait, Canadian lightweight champion, who meets Philly Lewis in a twelve-round match at the Lenox Sports Club here Monday night, has been notified by a syndicate of Canadian sporting men to offer Billy Gibson, manager of Benny Leonard, a $100,000 purse for a twenty-round battle between Leonard and Tait to be held at the Windsor racetrack July 4.

Gibson is considering the offer. Tait is well known to New England fans. A short time ago he scored a four-round knockout over Willie Gradwell, the Boston lightweight.

Mead is anxious to pit the Canadian with any lightweight selected by Boston promoters.

GUNBOAT JACK TOO MUCH FOR LEBLANC

Manchester, N. H., March 29.—Gunboat Jack of Lawrence punched George Leblanc of Montreal all over the ring for seven rounds before Leblanc's seconds threw in the towel.

Young Miller of Nashua, flyweight champion of the State, lasted nearly three rounds with Kid Durand of Montreal before the uneven battle was stopped by the referee.

MASTER ROBERT WINS GRAND NATIONAL

Liverpool, March 29 (Universal).—The "Grand National," the greatest test of horse endurance in the world, was won over the five-mile course at Aintree by Lord Airlie's Master Robert, a twenty-five to one shot.

Out of thirty starters over the thirty jump course, only eight finished. The other twenty-two succumbed to the stupendous obstacles of fence, ditch and open water.

The race was notable this year because of the fact that at least one trans-Atlantic steamship, the Montrose, of the Canadian Pacific line, postponed its sailing to enable its sportingly inclined passengers to journey to Aintree to watch the classic.

Even for the Derby no such a concession to a race mad crowd has ever before been made.

When it is realized that $500,000 would have been a moderate estimate of the losses to the leading bookmakers had the favorite, Conjurer, won, because the Grand National favorite was coupled with Galahad, winner of the Lincolnshire handicap, the tremendous interest in the race can be appreciated.

The Aintree course is as far from London as Boston is from New York but upwards of 5,000 sportsmen made the journey to be present to watch the King, who had also left the serious strike situation in London, cheer the Grand National winner when the jumpers should pass the last water ditch and win the most superlative prize of the whole racing year.

The smart set was noticeably absent, as always, from Aintree, Ascot, the Derby, Longchamps and Auteuil all beat Aintree so far as ordinary news of racing is concerned.

SHANNON PURPLE TRACK CAPTAIN

Worcester, March 29.—Jim Shannon of Collins, L. a junior, was elected captain of the Holy Cross basket ball team for the 1924-25 season.

Shannon played center on the Worcester quintet for he past two seasons and is an exceptional performer; he is big, standing well over six feet, fast and a remarkably accurate shot while his floor work leaves nothing to be desired.

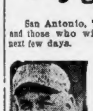
With the passing of McGloughlin, two years ago, a gaping hole appeared in the center of the Purple outfit, but Big Jim immediately set outto show the fans that he could fit quite comfortably into Denny's shoes; it was a difficult task but the speedy New Yorker did the trick very capably.

Although not starring on the polished surface, Jim bolsters up Bart Sullivan's track team as he is a letter man in that sport as well as in the basket game. He runs the two mile event in the spring season and during the fall is a leading member of the Purple harriers.

Fohl Thinks Well of Geygan For Second

By FRED C. LANE

San Antonio, Tex., March 29.—Decision on the rookies who will go and those who will stay will fail to the lot of Manager Fohl in the next few days.



Hugh Duffy

Eight will entrain for Boston with Coach Hugh Duffy, there to await the opening of the minor leagues. There are others on the squad that will make the barnstorming trip with the team that must go soon, that the roster may be reduced to regulation numbers.

This is a tough task. As Manager Fohl says: "It will be hard to decide just who will stay, for in my experience I don't remember when such a brilliant lot of kids showed up on one trip.

"We shall speculate more or less this season in an attempt to put the team on a firm foundation. Fellows like Wamby, Harris and O'Neill cannot go on forever. I am experimenting now with Geygan around second base.

"He has all the qualifications for a big leaguer but needs experience. He will be sent to one of the clubs in the Eastern league where we can watch his progress. I look forward to that boy to return to this club in a couple of years with a sound knowledge of the game and be ready to fill Wamby's place should Bill show signs of slipping.

"Fellows like Todt and Clarke have had enough schooling. They will make valuable substitutes to carry along. In my opinion Todt is a likely looking first baseman. He has been playing the outfield but from now on will work about the first sack.

"The team itself is not made up as means. You can look for a change in almost any position. There is nothing permanent about any."

Joe Harris

It is evident judging from Manager Fohl's talk that Babe Herman will be taken along. He has not shown qualifications to remain up in the big show, yet, but has been out two years on option and must be carried along this year if the club cares to hold his services.

The team winds up it's exhibition series with San Antonio today and Sunday. The Sox have won all five contests and on two occasions came from behind to do the trick.

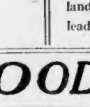
Manager Fohl looks for a big spurt from his ball players when they get a bit of northern weather. "Wait until we hit Indianapolis and then you can get the low-down on the strength of the club."

Boston Plays Brockton

The Boston Y. M. C. A. volley ball team will tackle a team from the Brockton Y. M. C. A. on the Huntington avenue floor at 4 p. m. on April 5.

New Chilean Boxer May Prove Lemon or Real Peach

The great fistic riddle at this time concerns Quinton Romero-Rojas, the heavyweight person from the wilds of Chili. "Who and what is he?" is the big quiz. The answers differ.



Tex Rickard

"A terrible fighter."—France.

"A guy that is likely to cause Jack Dempsey some sleepless nights."—America (as represented by Tex Rickard).

YOUNG DENCIO IS REAL RIVAL FOR VILLA

Another foreign ring star is climbing to the top of the fistic ladder and it is predicted that within a year Young Dencio, another Filipino, will be wearing a championship crown.

Young Dencio.

Dencio is the latest in flyweight circles and it is predicted that as soon as he gets a crack at the championship now held by Pancho Villa, there will be a new champion.

The "tiny bronze panther," as he is known in fistic circles, is on the trail of the three leading flyweights in the country. He is willing to step in the ring with either Johnny Buff, former champion, Frankie Genaro, American champion, or Pancho Villa, world's flyweight champion.

The Filipino, who is being conducted to the championship by Frank Dane, well known in fistic circles in Boston, had a match clinched recently with Johnny Buff, but, for some unexplained reason, the former champion ran out of the match.

Dencio will post a forfeit with the boxing commission in the near future to clinch a title match with the champion. In the meantime, it is expected that the new fistic sensation will be seen in action in this city.

HOCKEY SEASON TO WIND UP TONIGHT

The Boston hockey season will close tonight in a blaze of glory. The last game of the Boston end of the world's championship title series will be the card. Pittsburgh and B. A. A. will meet on the ice at the Arena. The Unicorn team will wage a desperate fight to stop the Yellow Jackets in their attempt to clean up the series. The B. A. A. will play its strongest team. Lack of substitutes hurt the Unicorn in the first and second games.

The percentage favors Pittsburgh, but the home team will not be defeated until the last second is played.

McTigue Is Favorite

New York, March 29.—Mike McTigue today came into added favor in the betting on his scheduled twelve-round bout with Young Stribling in Newark, on Monday night, the odds going to 8 to 5 on the world's light heavyweight champion.

Meikleham Referees The Harvard-Yale Race Again

William H. Meikleham has been appointed for the twenty-sixth time to act as referee of the Harvard-Yale regatta, Friday, June 20, on the Thames River, New London.

Francis V. Chappell, another old timer in the Harvard-Yale races, will serve as chairman of the New London regatta committee for the twenty-fifth time.

Chappell will consult with Meikleham within a few days regarding the time for the start of the varsity race.

Flood tide comes at such a time that the big eights must row much earlier than has been the custom in recent years.

GLENNA WINNER OF NORTH AND SOUTH TITLE

Pinehurst, N. C., March 29 (Universal).—Miss Glenna Collett of the Rhode Island Country Club won the North and South championship for the third successive time.

Glenna Collett

The Providences star displayed a brand of golf in the final that was impossible for any woman to beat against Miss Louise Fordyce of Youngstown, the champion of Ohio, whom she defeated by 6 to 3.

Miss Collett did the first nine holes in 35 and far more than half the field of the best men stars in the United States will not duplicate these figures in the North and South open next week.

The former champion won the first four holes and it looked as if the Ohio girl would take an unmerciful beating.

The fifth was a half in four and then Miss Collett dropped one when she required a five at the fifth.

She came right back, however, with a birdie two at the next, and then thrilled the gallery with three brilliant fours in succession.

That at the long eighth was a difficult birdie.

Glenna was six up at the turn.

The Providence girl then slowed somewhat from this fast pace and allowed two sixes and two fives to creep into her score.

Miss Fordyce stood only four down at the fourteenth. They halved that hole with two very fine threes.

Miss Collett then added one more big title to her long list of golfing achievements when a perfect four on the fifteenth beat the Ohio girl by a stroke.

The margin was five and three.

The cards:

MISS COLLETT—

MISS FORDYCE—

AL SHUBERT WINNER OVER BILLY MURPHY

Fall River, March 29.—In the main bout at the Casino A. A. Al Shubert of New Bedford was awarded the decision over Billy Murphy of Lowell.

Braves Take Another Smash at Giants

By NICK FLATLEY

Sarasota, Fla., March 29.—The Braves sailed over the bay this morning to take another smash at the Giants, who have been getting licked with great regularity since the tribe started them on the skids a week ago with a 1 to 0 shutout.

The champions have dropped five out of six, and are not in what you might call a pleasant frame of mind.

Our Braves, on the other hand, are finding the world a pretty good place. They have won three out of the last four, and are looking better with each explosion. They were sending Jess Barnes and Jim Yeargin after the league leaders today, and were as serious about the whole thing as if it meant something.

Jess Barnes

These Spring games seem to create a lot of interclub rivalry that will help steam matters up when the season rolls around. Those who thought such contests would have the opposite effect are as quiet as the Common in Wakefield after midnight.

The Braves are coming back to St. Petersburg next Spring, and are going to make the city their permanent training quarters. Even in this unusual and extraordinary Winter conditions have been good enough to get another team in shape. The other two Brave Springs here were without blemish or storm.

Jim Yeargin

Chatter to the effect that the Yanks were going to drive the Braves out of the village caused President Mathewson and Judge Fuchs to ask for a settlement.

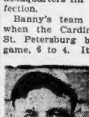
The big men of the city, who have met the Brave officials and ball players, were opposed to bringing in strangers, and it will not be long before the papers are signed making the thing a set and binding perennial affair.

St. Petersburg is perhaps the best of all the Florida training camps taken from all angles. There's enough weather and enough excitement to keep a ball club working and interested in life.

The lack of excitement in some of the smaller villages causes the noble athletes to get homesick and to think too much about themselves and so on.

Healthy young Americans need something more than toil. The Brave headquarters fill the bill to perfection.

Danny's team evened things up when the Cardinals marched into St. Petersburg by winning a ball game, 6 to 4. It was not the best contest in the world, but results count.



Rube Marquard

The Braves got their pitching pair, Genewich and Marquard, went through for a nervous moment, though the clubbing Cards gave them no serious trouble.

Rogers Hornsby started the game, but his fling, which kept him on the bench quite a lot last season, gave trouble and he retired. If Rogers can't stand up through the whole campaign, the Cards chances are knocked right now.

Branch Rickey didn't have a word to say about trades, so the Braves bosses have decided to forget all about collecting Milton Stock for third base. If Branch wants to trade now, he must do the offering. Then he can be snapped up when he says something definite.

SPORTING AMERICAN

SANDOW RILED BY ATTACK ON WORLD'S CHAMPION LEWIS

STRANGLER IS AFTER SETUPS

By JACK CONWAY

The Honorable Billy Sandow, manager of Strangler Lewis, is very much upset over the fact this writer charges that the champion is clinging on to his title by tackling setups instead of legitimate challengers. William apparently read our recent attack on Lewis, as he wires from Chicago as follows:

"See where you have been roasting Lewis in the Boston American. Lewis will wrestle Farmer Bailey, Angelo Taramaschi, Toots Mondt, George Kotsaftes or either of the Zbyszko brothers. Fail to see how you are justified in roasting Lewis."

Tears come into our eyes as we read Sandow's wire. We might have been overcome by our feelings if we were not able to read between the lines of Sandow's message.

Lewis, according to Sandow, is prepared to wrestle in Boston provided he can name his opponent from a selected list.

Notice, gentle reader, that the name of Stanley Stasiak, Polish champion, is not numbered among those whom Lewis is willing to tackle.

Apparently the Strangler has about as much desire to clash with Stasiak as the average citizen has to jump from the top of a skyscraper.

THREE EIGHT-ROUND BOUTS AS ARMORY A. A. PRELIMS.

Nate Siegal, former New England welterweight champion, and Bob Lowery, Scotch welterweight, will be supported by three eight-round bouts when they clash in the feature ten-round tussle at the Armory A. A.'s show at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday night.

Charley Donovan of Dorchester will collide with the best available opponent in the semi-final of eight rounds. Shaver O'Brien of South Boston will travel eight frames with Joe Mandot of Cambridge, while Frankie Brown of the West End and Charley Flanagan of Dorchester will swap blows.

LOWERY WILL MAKE SIEGAL STEP LIVELY

Bob Lowery is one of those carefree, two-handed fighters, and he will make Siegal step lively from bell to bell. Inasmuch as Nate has won his last three bouts by knockout, including Joe Pangrazio, Felix Kline and Johnny Avila out of the picture, the Scotch welterweight will find a worthy foeman.

GEORGE WARD TO MEET LATZO AGAIN

George Ward of Elizabeth, N. J., will clash with Pete Latzo of Scranton, Pa., once more at Philadelphia on April 8. When Ward and Latzo swapped blows in this city, the decision went to Latzo. A knockdown was a big factor in Latzo's victory. Ward recently won over Eddie Shevlin and is of the opinion he will upset Latzo in their frolic in Philadelphia.

MICKEY WALKER CANCELS BOUTS FOR APRIL

Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, has cancelled all bouts he had booked for April out of respect to the memory of Jack Bulger, his manager who died from peritonitis following an operation for appendicitis. Walker is heart broken over the death of Bulger and will not even think of the boxing game until the latter part of next month.

Bulger's contract with Walker, being for personal services, naturally ended with his death and does not become a part of his estate.

Mickey says he is being pestered by managers from all parts of the country who would like to enrich themselves by attending to his business affairs.

STAR BOXERS ENTER THE FITTON TOURNEY

East Boston fans look forward to a banner card Tuesday night when Fitton Council K. C. holds an amateur boxing tournament.

Among the entries received is that of Bobby Jasaee. Revere's pride and joy. Jasaee is regarded as the best amateur ever developed in Revere and a brilliant future is predicted for him.

Jasaee's manager, Matt McCusker, writes that Joe Minehan and Hunchy Beale will be easy picking for Bobby.

Eddie Devine, South End K. O. artist, and the season's sensation in the amateur ranks, has entered the 130-pound class. He expects to add a few more victims to his list Monday night.

Competition will be held in five classes, 112, 118 and 125 pounds novice, and 126 and 147 pounds open.

Entries close with Tommy Regan, No. 80 Neptune road, East Boston.

TARAMASCHI TO CLASH WITH BAILEY

Farmer Bailey

Angelo Taramaschi, world's greatest Italian wrestler, showed the public Thursday night that he is just about 75 per cent. better wrestler than they ever believed him to be by the decisive manner in which he defeated Judge Kotsatos. He is right now in wonderful form and a lot better than at any time in his career.

He has already disposed of Nazarena Poggi, one of the contenders for the Italian title. He stands ready to back himself for $1000 to wrestle Renato Gardini, Ernesto Vadella or Mike Rounsaia if any of these men dispute his claim to the Italian title.

It is also known that Paul Bowser stands ready to promote any of these bouts if these men want to meet the Italian title holder.

Angelo is now out for a return bout with Lewis or a match with Stasiak, the Polish Lion. Next Thursday night at the Grand Opera House as will meet George Farmer Bailey, the Brattleboro Strong Man, in a finish match, best two falls in three.

The loser of this match will be out of future competition in Boston as far as Promoter Paul Bowser is concerned. It will be up to Bailey to make good on this occasion or it will be curtains for him.

In the semi-final, Miss Cora Livingston, the champion lady wrestler of the world, will defend her title in a finished match best two falls in three for the title. Her opponent will be Miss Belle LaMar, the champion lady wrestler of France. Miss LaMar defeated Miss Livingston in their last engagement and will be able to make the going hot for the champion.

Still another bout on the card will be a one-fall match between Savage Tatolos and John Kilonis. These two Greeks are the Champion Rough House Greeks of the World and have been matched at the urgent appeal of hundreds of fans. It should be some battle.

BOSTON "Y" TO HOLD MEET ON APRIL 5

The Boston Y. M. C. A. will hold its annual record-breaking meet on April 5. The object is to give members of the association all opportunity to compete in an endeavor to break all existing records of the "Y." It will be a closed meet, restricted to members of the association. As a result of the fact that a number of star athletes of the east are members, there will be keen rivalry and high class sport.

The Eastern A. A. of Revere is arranging the schedule for the baseball season and would like to hear from any of the best sixteen or seventeen year old teams in the State. Communicate with F. Rigiore, No. 715 Broadway, Revere.

PASSAIC WINS THEIR 147TH STRAIGHT

New York, March 29 (Universal)—The Passaic High School basketball team won easily from the Christian Brothers of Syracuse, 29 to 17, the 147th consecutive victory. The "wonder team" has been undefeated since March, 1919.

Police reserves were summoned to handle the crowds at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory. More than 12,000 spectators witnessed the game and 3,000 persons were unable to gain admittance.

Gate receipts will go to the American Olympic committee fund to send American athletes to France for the Paris meet.

The game started with a rush that carried the Passaic quintet into a 12 to 4 lead. Although outclassed, the Christian Brothers played as well by half the score was 18 to 10 at the end of the half.

Passaic was never in danger. Pankman starred for the New Jersey team by shooting sensational baskets from the centre of the floor. Marcer starred for the Brothers.

St. John's Prep School of Brooklyn defeated Hoboken High School, champions of New Jersey, 44 to 29, in the preliminary game.

Lineup and summary:

PASSAIC		CHRISTIAN BROS.

AQUINAS MAKE A BASKETBALL RECORD

Chicago, March 29 (Universal)—Aquinas Institute of Rochester, N. Y., set what is believed to be a world's basketball tournament record when it shut out the Cathedral High quintet of Sioux Falls, S. D., in a first round game of the National Catholic Interscholastic Tourney at Loyola University. The score was 30 to 0.

Sioux Falls fought hard all the way, but could not penetrate the Rochester defence.

The smooth Aquinas machine is now considered a serious contender for the title. They will meet Detroit University High in the second round play today.

Other scores were:

FIRST ROUND.

St. Mel's Academy, Chicago, 24; Carroll U. High, Cleveland, 19.
De La Salle Academy, Kansas City, 28; Catholic Central, Washington, Ind., 12.
Detroit U. High, Detroit, 15; Manferich High, St. Louis, 7.

SECOND ROUND.

Catholic Central, Ft. Wayne, 24; Cathedral High, Duluth, 18.
Catholic Latin, Cleveland, 24; St. Patrick's Pueblo, 17.
Spalding Institute, Peoria, Ill., 30; Creighton U. High, Omaha, 16.

ABE ATTELL BADLY HURT IN ACCIDENT

Glens Falls, N. Y., March 29.—Abe Attell, former featherweight champion of the world was almost "knocked out" when his automobile overturned and threw him through the windshield, and badly lacerated his face and hands.

The accident occurred north of Schroon Lake, where, it is understood he was seeking a camp.

Kepler Beats Saunders

Charles Kepler of Bangor defeated Perry Saunders of Boston in the New England pocket billiard championship at the State Theatre Club 125 to 83.

The winner's high run was 26, Saunders made 24.

Tonight Charles Seeback of this city will oppose "Tel" Edwards of Pawtucket.

The Notre Dame A. C. of Cambridge would like to play any of the 13-14 year old teams around Boston. They plan to open the season on April 5, on the Cambridge Field. This team had a very successful season last year and won twenty-eight and lost only one. For games write Manuek Tasher, No. 198 Windsor street, Cambridge.

FILIPINOS CALL ON COOLIDGE TO ACT

Manila, March 29 (AP)—A tentative draft of the Filipinos' official reply to President Coolidge's letter addressed to Manuel Roxas, head of the Philippine Independence Mission in the United States in which the President set forth reasons why he opposed independence for the islands at the present time, says that the United States either should grant Independence now or once for all withdraw all its promises that such a step would be taken ultimately.

SOMEBODY BIT REFEREE ON THE EAR

Woonsocket, R. I., March 29.—Billy Carney of New Bedford and Rock Smith of New York fought ten rounds to a draw at the Coliseum.

After the decision, Smith rushed to Carney's corner and when Referee Summers tried to separate the fighters, all three fell to the floor.

In the melee, the referee's ear was bitten. Police entered and cleared the floor.

In the semi-final, Tony Carney of New Bedford won the decision over Young Kansas of Providence in eight rounds.

SAYS CARPENTIER WILL FIGHT TUNNEY

Paris, March 29.—Although denial has come from many sources of reports that Georges Carpentier will fight Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight, in New York, this Spring, M. Descamps, manager of Carpentier, insists that articles for such a fight to take place between June 16 and 20 in New York, have been signed.

Carpentier has started to train for his fight in Vienna on April 27 with Arthur Townley, English light-heavyweight.

It is reported that the French man's hands still give him trouble.

MEDFORD ELECTS ELLIS CAPTAIN

Fred Ellis, Medford High four letter man, was elected captain of the 1925 basketball team at a meeting of the letter men. Ellis has earned letters in football, baseball, track and basketball and he is the only four letter lad in Medford High.

He is known as Fish Ellis and Coach Sampson ranks him as one of the best forwards in schoolboy ranks. Medford closed its season with a monster interclass carnival held in the gymnasium.

SHEPPARD DEFEATS MARTIN ON POINTS

Portland, Me., March 29.—In a fast twin-six bout before the Pine Tree A. C., Johnnie Sheppard of Woburn defeated Andy Martin of Boston on points.

STRANGLER LEWIS BEATS DAVISCOURT

PITTSBURGH IS SECOND GAME WINNER

Lionel Conacher

The game was a close, hard fought contest as the score indicates, and the Boston lads did remarkably well to hold the visitors to the narrow margin of one goal.

The Yellow Jackets, with their wealth of star substitutes, were able to force the issue all the time, and their forward line held the Unicorn defence players on their toes from the start.

Captain Conacher scored the only tally in the second period. He dived out from scrimmage in front of his goal and captured the loose puck. He avoided the two defence men between him and the net, drew Goalie Lacroix out and drove the shot home.

B. A. A. missed several opportunities to score in the first period. Geran starred with his flashy skating work, but was well covered all the time.

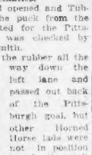
Small and Ag Smith put on several dashes down the ice and passed out from in back of the nets, but no Boston player was in position to take advantage of it.

AG SMITH SUFFERED CUT OVER FOREHEAD

Ag Smith was the second Boston casualty of the series. He suffered a clip over the forehead in the last of the second period. He gamely finished the contest in bandages.

Geran and Roger Smith, the burly Pittsburgh defence man, engaged in either a hugging or wrestling match in front of the Westerners' net. They were assisted by several of the local and Western players. Both got two-minute penalties.

The first period opened and Tobin Smith got the puck from the face-off and started for the Pittsburgh goal, but was checked by Conacher and Smith.



Jerry Geran

Ag Smith took the rubber all the way down the left lane and passed good and hard in front of the Pittsburgh goal, but other Horned Horse lads were not in position to take the puck and an opportunity was lost.

Again after a few minutes Small repeated, but again the Boston wings were out of position and again lost a chance to score.

B. A. A. MEN TRIED TO MAKE THE SCORE TIED.

Geran, Small and Ag Smith made shots at the net that the Pittsburgh goalie and Goalie Worters turned back all their efforts.

Worters had nine hard stops against eight for LaCroix in that period.

The third period was a nip and tuck affair, and contained several bits of individual play that drew many hands from the house. Jerry Geran worked hard but was covered. Pittsburgh maintained a three man defence most of the period, content in their one goal margin. Steps were even six for each.

The lineup and summary:

PITTSBURGH		B. A. A.

Cotton, c
McCurry, lw		rw, Cronin
Drury		c, A. Smith
R. Smith, rd		ld, A. Small
Conacher, ld		rd, R. Smith
Worters, g		g, Nickle

Worcester, March 29.—Apparently the right field position on the Holy Cross ball club left vacant by the departure of Jack Dunn will be cared for by Buck Freemen, a Greater Boston boy.

Buck is no mean ball tosser and while at Columbia, before he transferred to the Worcester college he collected more than his share in the field. That season he hit four about 400. He was ineligible at Holy Cross last year because of the one-year transfer rule.

Freeman is troubled by his eyes because of an injury sustained last year when an auto with the Freshman team which he coached hit a post on the trip back, accidently injuring him.

Despite this handicap Freeman starred in the Boston Twilight League last summer and is expected to hit as well as ever in his brilliant career. He is expected to be one of the mainstays of this year's team.

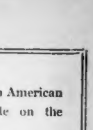
STRIBLING AND M'TIGUE READY FOR BIG BATTLE

When Young Stribling, the nineteen-year-old Atlanta schoolboy who won the light heavyweight championship of the South between his studies and classes, enters the ring in the Newark Armory on Monday night for his scheduled twelve round bout with World's Champion Mike McTigue, there will be many home folks present to lend him their moral and oral support.

The return match between these two rivals has aroused widespread interest, particularly below the Mason and Dixon line. Down there the mere intimation that Stribling was lucky to get a draw in his previous encounter with McTigue which took place last October in Columbus is both resented and ridiculed. Stribling's followers insist that McTigue was the favored one that time, and that the impending battle will bear them out.



Young Stribling

A large delegation of fans from Atlanta and Macon are coming here for the fight. They will arrive at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon Sunday. They are making the trip in two special cars attached to the New Orleans express. The party numbers more than 100, for Treasurer J. Franklin Black of the Newark Club was requested by wire to reserve a block of 150 ringside seats for them.

Pa Stribling has been tendered numerous offers contingent upon his son winning the world's light heavyweight title. One is from the circus. The contract is for the entire Stribling family, Pa and Ma, William L., which is Young Stribling's baptismal name, and Brother "Babe" to appear together in the acrobatic act they staged when they were known as the Four Novelty Grahams. Pa Stribling says that the sum they are offered to put on their old act is so large that it would exceed his son's earnings as a champion and even though it were split in four ways.

A fortune is to be made by the winner of the match this Summer. Bouts are virtually assured the victor with Gene Tunney, Harry Greb, Jack Delaney and Georges Carpentier before the end of the outdoor season.

How Stribling and McTigue Compare in the Ring

McTigue		Stribling

Boston Hockey Moguls Oppose One Year Rule

Boston hockey moguls protest the developments on the hockey conference in Toronto between President W. S. Haddock of the United States Amateur Hockey Association and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Haddock approved with officials of the Canadian association the one-year residence rule. He said that he would submit the proposition to the United States League.

The rule is opposed by Boston hockey authorities. The fact that so many Canadian hockey players attend graduate schools in this city has been the reason why Boston is opposed to the proposed rule.

AUTHORITIES CANNOT SEE WHY HE SHOULD BE BARRED

Because a man comes here to finish his college course and would like to continue to play hockey local hockey authorities see no reason why he should be barred from hockey for a year.

There is another angle to the proposed rule that has failed to make a hit with local hockey powers. The rules of the United States Amateur Association permit if man to come here from Canada to play hockey if he is only registered in the city in which he will play hockey by October 1. Boston has rigidly observed this rule.

ALL WESTERN CLUBS SET FOR NEXT SEASON

On the other hand, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, St. Paul and other strong Western teams are set for next season. They have remarkable teams. Local moguls argue that President Haddock can very well give his approval, so far as Western teams are concerned, but this does not go for Eastern outfits.

If Haddock gives the Canadian hockey officials the impression that he reflects the sentiment of the whole United States League he will learn at the next United States League meeting that the Eastern teams register a strong protest against the proposed one-year residence rule.

TUFTS ASKS TENNEY TO COACH BASEBALL

Fred Tenney, former Braves manager, captain and first baseman, is expected to solve the coaching problem at Tufts college until Kenneth Penniman and Bill will not return for several weeks and the Jumbo college authorities hope that Tenney will accept a temporary contract to pilot the Blue ball tossers. Nash returns.

Coach Nash is seriously ill with If Tenney cannot do the work, it is hoped that he will suggest somebody for the place.

CHAUFFEURS—

If you are out of work, don't keep it to yourself. Amongst the 240,000 families who read the Boston American there are many who need a man like yourself to drive and take care of their cars or trucks.

CONVERSE PUTS BLAME UPON CONGRESS

President M. M. Converse of the Converse Rubber Shoe Co. of Malden, discussing the business outlook in a communication to the financial editor of the Boston American, blames Congress in no uncertain language. He says:

Business as a whole is on a sound basis and unhampered it should wax and grow strong during 1924, but to bring this about there should be evidence of constructive co-operation on the part of Congress. This is not only lacking, but there appears to be a decided opposition on the part of Congress, for they refuse to pass measures that would create confidence and stimulate business, and measures that the people are clamoring for. Until Congress gets away from "pennut" politics and destroying reputations, confidence will be lacking and business will suffer.

Vice-President George H. Leach of George E. Keith Company, Brockton, shoe manufacturers, says:

We are sensible optimists about general business outlook for balance of year. Students of the subject agree better than in a long time that satisfactory times are before us and give reasons why.

The foreign situation also promises better things now that the franc has turned upward, and the Dawes' committee is a recognized factor.

Shoe manufacturing and retailing have not been in full step with general industry. However as in other cycles, it ought to catch up this year. Offering figures also tell us that the average per capita expenditure is $22 for shoes as against $46 each for clothing and automobiles. It looks as though in shoes, always a necessity, and with the ladies a luxury besides, business ought to be much better.

INCENDIARY MENACES LIVES OF TENANTS

EAST EAGLE ST. HOUSE AND 2 OCCUPANTS

East Boston police are hunting for the person who threw alcohol on a door of the Bevere apartment, 331 East Eagle street, and set fire to it. Arrow points to the door. Insects are, Carmella Bevere, above, and Fannie Bevere, below.

FIREBUG IN E. BOSTON SOUGHT

Mysterious Attempt to Burn Tenement Menaced Twelve Lives

The mysterious attempt to fire the three-story tenement building at No. 331 East Eagle street, East Boston, menacing the lives of the twelve occupants, baffled the police today.

A liquid, believed to be alcohol was poured on the door of the first floor tenement, occupied by the family of Antonio Bevere, owner of the house. The liquid was then fired but the flame burned itself out. When Mrs. Bevere returned home the door was still smoking.

The Bevere family consists of seven members, Bevere, his wife and five children, Carmella, Clark, Fanny, Marion and Joseph.

On the second floor live the family of Mrs. Rose Deerfano, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Deerfano and Vincent and Gracie Deerfano. The top floor tenement is occupied by Mrs. Mary Barbanti.

Mrs. Barbanti smelled smoke during the day and found the door of the Bevere family downstairs charred from fire. Evidence of some liquid was on the door and on the floor.

When Mrs. Bevere returned home a short time later, smoke still curled up from the charred door. The police are investigating.

Congratulations to Thure Hanson; Send Him Card

Back in 1913, Thure Hanson of Worcester was appointed State commissioner of weights and measures. He carried out an intensive program. He found that people were being cheated right and left by unscrupulous dealers. So energetically did he educate the dealers to the desirability of complying with the law that when he retired from office in 1920 short weights and measures were almost unheard of practices.

Thure Hanson

Mr Hanson is now employment manager for the Morgan Construction Company at Worcester. Tomorrow is his birthday. Send him a card or letter of congratulations in care of the Morgan Construction Company, Worcester.

HARVARD ROMANCE WRECKED

Deserted Wife Spurned as She Begs for Reunion With Young Husband

Mrs. Gertrude Dinehart Swan, bride of five months, came to Boston from Troy, N. Y., only to be rebuffed when she begged her young husband, Fred Swan, Dorchester, a Harvard student, to return to her.

Swan admits her story that he first left her in North Adams, three months after their marriage.

Swan has just entered Harvard, having transferred from Williams College, where he was within a few months of graduation. He was a fraternity member, track athlete and leader of the college orchestra. He lives at No. 30 Carruth street, Dorchester, and is a graduate of Milton Academy.

The couple were secretly married by a justice of the peace after eloping last October from Williamstown to Fownal, Vt. A second ceremony was later performed by Rev. William H. Walsh of Troy.

MET AT FOOTBALL GAME.

The elopment followed a meeting at a football game a few weeks previous between Williams College and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, at Troy. After the marriage, the couple rented a furnished apartment at North Adams, four miles from college.

Swan left North Adams and his bride during a visit of his parents there in January and has not seen her, he says, until she came to Boston on Thursday. They met in Pearl square, Dorchester, near his home, had some words and parted.

Swan's parents say they "put Fred out of the house" when they first learned of his secret marriage, but they deny they influenced their son to leave his bride.

They assert that during a visit of the young couple here on New Year's Day they had a long talk with young Mrs. Swan and arranged for her to stay away from their son until he finished school, but that three days later they found them together in North Adams.

Both parties have placed the matter in the hands of attorneys. Swan said today that he wants only to be allowed to finish his studies in preparation for the profession of medicine and that he "never wants to see Mrs. Swan again."

The young wife is twenty-one years old and lives at No. 2141 Sixth avenue, Troy. She is a singer and a graduate of St. Peter's School.

INTRODUCED LAST FALL.

"I met Fred through a casual introduction after the game last Fall," she said.

"After that he came to see me every Saturday and Sunday and wrote and telephoned between visits. A few times he slipped away from Williamstown to see me on Wednesdays.

"After the ceremony, I went home and he returned to college.

"After our New Year's visit to Boston his parents came to our North Adams apartment.

"He went away. The next day I telephoned and was told he was being taken home ill. I wrote constantly after returning to my own home, but received no answer and a registered letter I sent was signed for by his mother

"I came to Boston a few weeks ago and was told he was ill. But I looked through a window and saw him inside, playing checkers with his father. He had entered Harvard. I came to Boston Thursday and met him by waiting until he left the house on an errand."

BRIDE DESERTED BY HARVARD YOUTH

MRS. GERTRUDE SWAN

Fred Swan whose home is in Dorchester has repudiated the girl he married five months ago after an elopement. She came here from Troy, N. Y. to plead for a reunion but was scorned by her youthful husband.

BACK SAFE AFTER 75 DAY TRIP

Small Government Steamer Nearly Swamped; Cook Saved by Shipmates

The United States Public Health Service steamer Lieutenant Edgar F. Koehler tied up at Long wharf today after a 75-day passage from Tampa, Fla., in which the sturdy little craft narrowly escaped sinking with all on board.

Cook Fred McKay of South Boston, who fell overboard off Jupiter inlet in a storm, owes his life to his ability as a swimmer.

Captain W. F. Thompson, Mate Edward F. McGowan, Cook McKay and two deckhands left here last November to bring the Lieutenant Edgar F. Koehler to Boston. When they arrived at Tampa they found the boat in no condition for a Winter voyage north. They remained there until January 12 while repairs were effected on the vessel.

BATTLES IN SEA FOR LIFE.

Unable to carry a coal supply sufficient to take her the 800-mile trip to Jacksonville, the first coaling port, the steamer was taken in tow of the Coast Guard cutter Sauke. Off Jupiter inlet a norther descended upon the two vessels and soon kicked up a sea that nearly swamped the smaller craft. Seas swept over her, washing off the coal on deck, filling the fire room with water and putting out the fires. The crew had to bail out the steamer with buckets, as there was no steam for the pumps.

Cook McKay fell overboard at this time. He clung to a rope for a while, then swam toward the cutter, which was coming to the rescue of her tow.

He was dragged to safety by shipmates.

MISSING GIRL TO BE SOUGHT BY RADIO

Leading Broadcasting Stations in East Join Hunt for Brockton Junior

Brockton, March 29.—The six of all the leading radio broadcasting stations in the East has been enlisted in the search for Olga Kibrick, seventeen-year-old Brockton High School junior, who disappeared from her home, ten days ago.

Olga Kibrick

The girl's father, Isaac S. Kibrick, a prominent real estate and insurance agent, has also secured the co-operation of the leading insurance companies of the country in the search for his daughter.

All the big broadcasting stations in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Schenectady, Newark and other Eastern cities have already broadcasted a complete description of the missing girl, together with a detailed description of the clothing she wore or carried with her when she left home.

The big insurance companies have notified all their branch offices throughout the country to make every effort to locate the girl.

So far, not the slightest trace of the girl has been found. When she walked from her home, ostensibly to take a suitcase full of magazines to a neighbor, she had $100 in cash with her and some school clothes.

Her health impaired by overstudy, the parents fear that the girl may have ended her life.

Mr. Kilbrick thinks his daughter may have gone to Chicago, and he has appealed to the authorities of that city to join in the search.

He bases this belief on the fact that, on the day she disappeared, she heard a lecture on Chicago by Superintendent of Schools John F. Scully.

SKINNY LEGS OF BOY ASSET IN ELEVATOR JAM

Oswald Sousa Would Have Lost Both if They Had Been a Bit Thicker

Little Oswald Sousa, a fifteen-year-old messenger boy, has thin legs that have brought taunts from his playmates all his life.

But those spindly legs are going to carry Oswald around as long as he lives, and if those legs had been fat and chubby, like most boys, he would be forced to hobble around on crutches or get about on wooden legs for the remainder of his days.

Oswald, whose home is at No. 45 Portsmouth street, Cambridge, is a messenger employed by Andrew J. Lloyd Company in the Old South Building. He went to the basement to eat his lunch today. He perched himself on the elevator that runs between the basement and the first floor, letting his legs hang over the side.

While playing with the elevator rope he accidentally started the car. He was drawn swiftly upward. His legs were caught between the sides of the elevator floor and wall. The boy's screams brought help, but it was necessary to run the elevator to the basement before he could be released.

At the Haymarket square relief station it was found that the boy's legs, while badly cut and torn, could be saved.

"If they had been half an inch thicker he would have lost both of them," said the hospital surgeon.

POINCARE TO PUSH STERN POLICY IN RUHR

Paris, March 29.—Premier Raymond Poincare's new cabinet held its first formal meeting today to formulate a foreign policy. Later the cabinet was presented to Pres. Millerand. Poincare's stern policy towards Germany and the program of rigid economy will continue in force.

The cabinet meeting lasted two hours when the ministers went to the Elysee palace. In addition to foreign policy they discussed the program to be presented to the Chamber of Deputies.

BANDITS ROB BANK AND SHOOT WOMAN

Chicago, March 29.—Four bandits held up the Boulevard State Savings Bank in the northwest part of the city today and escaped with currency which bank officials said they did not believe would exceed $6,000. Shots were reported fired as the bandits escaped and, Mrs. George Brown was wounded in the leg.

HUERTA LANDS IN GALVESTON, TEXAS

Mexico City, March 29 (I.N.S.).—Adolfo De La Huerta, civilian leader of the recent revolution, who was reported lost at sea in a storm, landed at Galveston, Texas, on the night of March 25, according to official advices received today by General Arnulfo Gomez, commander of the federal district garrison. This confirms a previous report received by General Gomez from a Mexican secret service agent that De La Huerta had reached Galveston safely. He left Mexico March 16.

El Paso, Texas, March 29.—General Guadalupe Sanchez, rebel chieftain, and his staff were executed after their capture in the battle at Mafafa, Vera Cruz.

'PIGGLY WIGGLY' MAN OPENS UP AGAIN

Memphis, Tenn., March 29.—Clarence Saunders of Piggly-Wiggly fame, opened a new store today with the sanction of the Federal Court. Judge J. W. Ross granted Saunders' petition for an appeal of the injunction by the Piggly-Wiggly Corporation and modified the restraining order granted March 6, so as to permit Saunders to operate grocery and merchandise stores under his own name, but not to use certain patents, trademarks, names and "instrumentalities" which the corporation claimed to have bought from Saunders.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure when buying used cars, just as it is in other cases. American mechanics make sure your used car is right.

N. E. METHODISTS MAY CONSOLIDATE BOARDS

Providence, March 29.—The New England Southern Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, holding its eighty-fourth annual session here today voted to recommend to the general conference to meet at Springfield, Mass., in May, a reorganization and consolidation of the benevolence boards. It was also voted to merge the conference historical society with the New England Historical Society and to turn over to the latter all the historical property of the former. Rev. E. C. Bass, financial agent of the conference claimants permanent fund, reported that the fund had increased from $75,000 twelve years ago to more than $219,000 at present. Ten candidates for admission on trial composed the class, among whom was Edwin H. Hughes, Jr., son of the presiding bishop, making the fifth member of the Hughes family to become a Methodist minister.

PREMIER AVERTS STRIKE; OTHERS LOOM

London, March 29 (I.N.S.)—Premier Ramsay MacDonald's double victory in forestalling a strike of subway workers and effecting a provisional settlement of street railway and bus employes' strike has averted a split in the Labor party, it was believed today. Other labor troubles loom in the immediate future. A lockout of shipyard workers has been ordered for April 12. The coal miners have forced the Premier to promise to introduce in Commons a minimum wage bill which may be so bitterly opposed as to cause the government's downfall. Building trades employes are also threatening to strike.

PLAN "INDEPENDENT" GROUP IN IRELAND

London, March 29.—Four members of the government party will join Joseph McGrath, resigned Irish Free State Minister of Industry and Commerce, in forming a new independent group, according to the Daily Telegraph's Dublin correspondent. They intend supporting the Free State government generally, but on certain matters will act independently. One of the matters is the question of the Ulster boundary. This was one of the causes of the army revolt and if it remains long unsettled, the correspondent says, there is a chance for more trouble.

Held for Hitting Wife

David Spiller of Elm street, West End, was arraigned in Municipal Court today charged with threats, assault and battery on his wife, Ida, and non-support. He was held in $1,000 until Monday. Spiller was arrested a few days ago, placed on probation, went home and once again hit his wife, according to her testimony.

BROCKTON FIRE CAUSES LOSS OF $40,000

2 Alarms Sounded for Blaze That Threatens to Destroy Opera House

Brockton, March 29.—Fire which did damage amounting to $40,000 in the Opera House Block on Main street for a time threatened the new million-dollar Olympia building not bowing early today.

The fire started in the Rankin Style Shop at No. 176 Main street. When the firemen arrived the entire interior was in flames.

On one side of the Style Shop is the Model Shoe Store, on the other is the Women's Specialty Shop. Fearing the Opera House Block and the Olympia Building would be destroyed, a second alarm was turned in, calling all the Brockton fire fighting apparatus.

The firemen confined the fire to the Rankin shop, but the adjoining stores were badly damaged by water. The offices and stores on the three upper floors of the building were damaged by smoke.

The cause of the fire is unknown. Police and fire department officials are investigating.

Previous to the two-alarm fire a slight blaze in the Dura-Tex Mocassin Company set off a sprinkler head, extinguishing the flames. The fire was on the third floor and the sprinkler ran undisturbed until discovered.

The lower floors were deluged and a fire alarm was sent in to obtain men to prevent further water damage. Tenants in the building placed the loss at $10,000.

17 DRIVEN OUT BY WORCESTER BLAZE

Worcester, March 29.—Seventeen persons were forced to flee their homes, scantily clad, and damage of $1,200 was caused today by a fire of undetermined origin in the Atlantic & Pacific grocery store, No. 932 Main street. Smoke damaged the upper floors of the three-story wooden structure, occupied by the families of Frank L. Thayer, W. H. Searl, W. W. Ell and Miss Elizabeth Chavoor.

13 N. E. COLLEGES FORM RADIO LEAGUE

Springfield, March 29.—Thirteen New England colleges and universities are represented in the New England division of the American Radio Relay League. J. O. Glennis of Dartmouth College was elected president, W. M. Hall of University of Vermont secretary, and R. S. Gooley of M. I. T. and W. B. Gould of Worcester Polytechnic Institute, executive committee members.

HIRAM JOHNSON IN JERSEY PRIMARIES

Trenton, N. J., March 29.—Senator Hiram W. Johnson has been formally placed in the contest for New Jersey delegates to the Republican National Convention. Nominating petitions were filed with the Secretary of State Martin for delegates at large, alternates at large and district delegates throughout the State who will be voted upon at the presidential preference primaries in April.

HARVARD MAN IN 125 IN MINE SAVED BY THEIR NEW BOSS

Bluefield, W. Va., March 29.—The presence of mind of T. J. Dawson, who three weeks ago became superintendent of the Yukon Pocahontas Coal Company at Yukon, W. Va., today is credited with the saving of the lives of 125 miners in No. 1 mine yesterday when an explosion claimed the lives of 26 men in No. 2 mine. When the blast came, Dawson was near the entry between the two mines. Realizing what had happened, he rushed into No. 1 and warned the men.

"There's the car for us!"

"We Wanted" — "We Found"

—a reliable engine, smooth and powerful — that the Oakland six-cylinder engine is the sweetest-running and most capable engine in its class. Its advanced design is very evident;

—a smart distinctive car — that the True Blue Oakland, with its body by Fisher, is by far the best looking car within our price range;

—a safer car for us all — that four-wheel brakes, centralized controls, automatic spark advance, and disc wheels definitely mark the Oakland as a safer car to drive;

—an enduring body finish — that Oakland uses a remarkable new finish—Duco—which lasts indefinitely and does not mar or check;

—all-season touring car — that Oakland's new permanent top insures tight-fitting curtains and, if we wish, a snug Glass Enclosure, which at slight extra cost gives closed car comfort;

—most car for our money — that, considering its advanced construction, the True Blue Oakland Six, at its remarkably low price, is unquestionably the car for us.

How Mrs. E. M. W. Prepares Her Meals and Economizes in Many Ways

By Martha Lee

THE $5 prize goes today to Mrs. E. M. W. of the Shoe City for this economical, nourishing menu:

BREAKFAST, 30c.
Cereal Meal With Raisins
Top Milk
Rye Toast Fig Marmalade
Coffee

LUNCH, 47c.
Potatoes Baked With Bacon
Graham Muffins
Orange Custard

DINNER, 72c.
Creamed Salmon With Green Peas
French Fried Potatoes
Lemon Cake Pudding Tea

The flat taste commonly objected to in cereal meal Mrs. E. M. W. overcomes by cooking it overnight with a small percentage of wheatena, a teaspoonful sugar and one-half cup seeded raisins. Fig marmalade, made when new figs are cheapest, costs seven cents a glass.

She prepares her lunch and dinner together in the forenoon. The lemon pudding is made with stale cake, cookies and bread. The egg yolks left from the lemon meringues are used in the orange custard. The luncheon potatoes she cuts in half and bakes in a big iron spider in the oven, with bacon arranged over top. When the bacon is crisp, she turns the potatoes to brown on the other side.

Mrs. E. M. W. says she always has enough creamed salmon left over to make a luncheon dish for the children next day by adding two chopped hard-boiled eggs and serving on t ast.

This menu provides all the food elements necessary to properly nourish the body, and is at the same time appetizing and economical.

From the many excellent menus received, we have selected the following two for honorable mention:

The first, sent in by Mrs. A. G. P. of Boston, will serve four people at total cost of $1.95.

Broiled Bacon Coffee
Corn Cake

LUNCHEON, 35c.
Hearts of Lettuce Creole Dressing
Buttered Toast Coffee Jelly

DINNER, 50c.
Tomato Soup (canned)
Hamburg Roll With Gravy

DEEP FAT FRYING

Many housewives think this method of cooking is a fussy process, but in reality it is one of the simplest, quickest and most palatable forms of cooking. Use a deep enamel saucepan with a frying basket to fit. Melt two pounds of lard slowly. When blue smoke rises, test with a piece of soft bread; if it browns in 40 seconds fat is hot enough for any cooked mixture. For uncooked mixtures, the bread should brown in one minute.

Many kinds of food may be fried in the same fat, such as potatoes, croquettes, doughnuts. Clarify fat frequently by melting, adding raw potatoes cut in quarter-inch slices and allow fat to boil vigorously. When brown strain fat through double cheesecloth. When meat or fish is to be deep fat fried it should be kept in a warm room for some time previous to cooking, and wiped dry and dipped in cracker or soaking fat. All fried foods should be drained on brown paper.

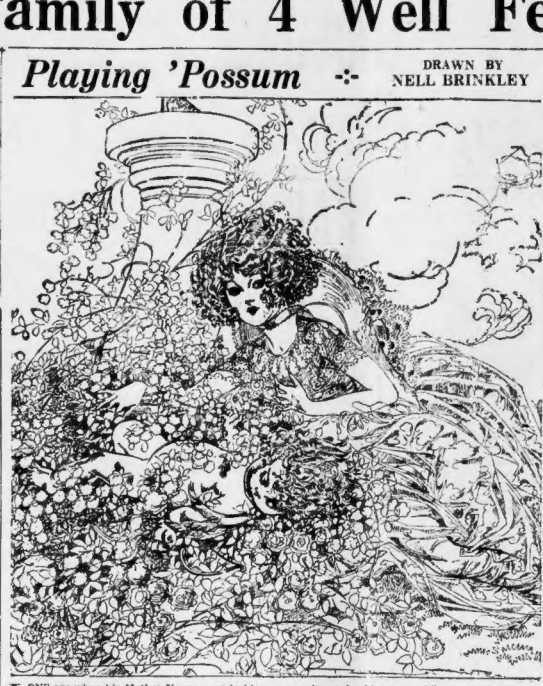
Playing 'Possum

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY



LONG ago when his Mother Venus went looking for him and found him planted amongst the girls, she told them he was not to be trusted; that when a back was turned he would send his fatal dar' into it; that he was all smiles and guile; that the roses on his cheeks did not mean infantile newness; that Love was ancient, treacherous, full of wicked mischief, and the moment you found him, you were to bring him home to her—and watch out for him even while you brought him.

So when you find him, a pink and gilt and white little love, asleep in a bed of roses, his pink toes and fingers no less delicate and rosy than the roses he breathes among, do not come too close and bend above him, for his arrow and bow are never far away, he is never really asleep or tamed, and usually one bright robin-eye is open!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

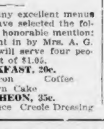
Boston Health Commissioner.

WATER is the oldest and cheapest substance for adulterating food products. Presumably it has been employed more commonly than any other adulterant.

It is now being used by creameries and others, upon a systematic basis, to extend butter.



Dr. Mahoney.

Every excess pound of water sold as butter means that consumers have been defrauded, and that some butter manipulator or dealer has received an unwarranted profit. Sixty-five to seventy cents a pound for water is a high price.

Standards have been adopted in many States establishing a minimum percentage of fat in butter. Until recently the requirement in this State was 82.5 per cent. This allowed reasonable quantities of water, salt and curd butter, and gave the purchaser a fair percentage of what he assumed he was buying, namely butter fat. This protection to the consumer, however, no longer exists, for by the recent revision of the laws of Massachusetts, the food law, under which the above fat standard was adopted, was so modified that it is no longer applied to butter; and there is no fixed limit upon the amount of water that butter may lawfully contain.

Unfortunately this situation can only be remedied by new regulations. At present the only safeguard as to the quality of butter rests with the character and guaranty of the dealer.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

How much water should the normal, healthy adult drink every day in order to keep in good health? I have been told that two quarts is about right.
Mrs. A. B. A.

The blood needs a continuous supply of water. If it does not get its required quota otherwise, it will absorb water from the tubes or other tissues, thereby receiving poisons as well, leaving the tissues dry and constipated. There is no particular definition from excessive water drinking as some people practice it, for example, ten to sixteen glasses per day. A good rule is to drink one to six glasses of water daily, one in rising, one at each meal, one in the forenoon and one in the afternoon. A larger amount should be taken when perspiring freely.

I have rheumatism and would like to ask you for a diet.
M. A. C.

In addition to milk, eggs, cereals, bread and butter, rice and cereal or milk soups are permissible. To most soups, which have scarcely any nutritive value, there are certain theoretical objections, but sometimes their administration in small amounts is warranted. With the decrease in fever, soup is not used, and in convalescence, fish, meat and vegetables. Diluted fruit juices are permissible.

My baby frequently has colic. Will you tell me what I can do to prevent it?
Mrs. J. A. H.

This is caused by indigestion due to overfeeding, improper feeding, or too frequent feeding. The bowel is distended by gas, giving rise to severe pain. One of the best means of relief is to take steps to remedy the constipated condition, which is most likely to cause colic. It is an advisable procedure to have baby occasionally disappears by the end of the third or fourth month. The baby's legs should be kept warm and the abdomen massaged with warm oil. Do not feed the baby while the attack is on. A little water may be given if the baby will swallow it. Colic is also caused by colds, and if the baby has been chilled to any degree, it is well to place him in a warm bath for five or ten minutes, wrapping him warmly after taking him out of the water.

I suffer every summer from hay fever. What will prevent it?
E. M.

Hay fever is due to a sensitization to certain forms of protein found in the pollen of certain plants and in horse dandruff and other substances. Obscure forms of asthma may be due also to such substances. It is desirable to learn by certain tests the kind of protein to which one is sensitized. Relief from this disease can often be accomplished by vaccination or a complete avoidance of such foods or pollen may be attempted.

TALKS ABOUT FINISHING FURNITURE

We've very nearly "finished" furniture in this country. By cutting down all the trees, and no planting enough new ones to grow up and take their places. So if you are fortunate enough to have a few pieces of furniture, made of fine, old wood, hang on to them. Good furniture is becoming scarcer and scarcer. And, because of this scarcity, every year it is more expensive.

Many people think that "veneer" means "imitation." It doesn't at all. The best cabinet makers consider veneering the best furniture construction. You see, solid woods are likely to crack, or warp. A veneer will not do this, because it is made of a thick core of wood which is not likely to crack or split. It is then laid in a lot of pieces and glued together. Over this is glued a thin veneer of the wood desired. Sometimes another veneer is put over this. This makes a more sturdy construction, yet less expensive. This is what you buy when you ask for walnut or mahogany. It simply means that the solid parts and the veneer are made of the kind of wood the dealer designates when he sells it to you.

A wax finish is the most common furniture finish used today. But waxed furniture has to be cared for carefully and often. And even then you have merely the glow of the wood—dark or light, whichever it may be. It is only with painted or stained furniture that we can have really colorful rooms. Enamel is a good thing to put on unfinished furniture. It comes in many lovely colors and is easy to clean and care for.

Study the colors of your rug, or draperies. Select the color that you think ought to predominate in your room, and paint the tables, chairs, etc., that color. If you have draperies of a black ground with a touch of orange, or red, and a little green or mauve, you can paint one or two pieces a Chinese red.

Make cushions for the chairs of the same material as your over-draperies, binding them with narrow cord of red. Our supposition have found a piece of striped denim that is soft and pretty when turned wrong side to. Upholster a little settee with this blue striped denim. Paint a few pieces of furniture first with old-gold paint. Let it dry a few days, then apply another coat of the same. After this has dried several days, apply a coat of brilliant blue-green, rubbing it with soft cloths just as it begins to harden, so that the old gold shows through. After a few more days, paint over with a coat of rich, peacock blue, and rub it also just before it begins to solidify, so that the other coats show through, and you get high-lights. This process is called antiquing. This same scheme could be followed with the colors black, gold and red, in the order named.

Paint the floor black, use small black rugs, and have white curtains hanging at the windows and for portieres. With the blue denim and blue-green furniture, sunshine yellow hangings could be used, and a neutral toned rug. Have the walls painted a deep cream, and use the same paint on the woodwork and ceiling. This is especially good in a small room, if you want to make it look larger. Any dull gold paint shop can mix paints to tone with the sample of hanging you present.

BRIMS AND TRIMS
By PRISCILLA PRICE

THE new hats have many different shaped brims. Some are very tiny and come well down over the eyes, others turn abruptly up on the left side.

A French model I saw the other day was very stylish: the brim was made of black bengaline, it was rather narrow on the left side and grew large on the right, drooping almost to the shoulder. Another was a black satin and milan with upturned front and small ostrich tips hanging from the brim near each ear.

A smart little tricorne with black milan crown and black silk brim, is very effective if trimmed with a flimy brown figured lace veil, worn over the front of the neck and chin. It is held to the top of the hat with a large brown buckle.

Parrots, black-birds and humming birds are now worn on hats. A group of humming birds are sometimes massed on the top of a little cloche. They look almost as if they were in a nest. Small parrots are fitted over the brim edge, one small hat has two green parrots. Another has a parrot made of white cord, and it is perched on a navy milan hat. Bright colored felt hats have parrots of the same shade. Owls are also seen, soft, fluffy white owls with their bright eyes look extremely smart on a small black satin hat worn with a black and white flowered silk dress. For the girl who plays tennis, there is a cloche of Bangkok trimmed with a ribbon on which two tennis rackets are embroidered. Golf clubs would look well, too.

A turban of black crepe, fitting the head closely and coming down over the eyebrows, has as its only trim a long silk tassel, held to the right of the shape by a knot of the fabric. This is a favorite for the young girl. Her mother would like a close fitting hat of black satin, with black ostrich feathers laid from the crown-center to each side. It is soft and becoming and this across-the-crown trimming is very new. It may also be developed in a soft fold or twist of the material running from left to right over the ears. It may be the only trimming and looks well with a narrow brim.

ABOUT YOUR BEAUTY

HOW TO MAKE YOUR EARS REAL AIDS TO YOUR BEAUTY

By Maria Jeritza,

EVEN though fashion from time to time decrees that ears shall be exposed to view, the average woman prefers to conceal her ears or leave just their pink tips visible. Perhaps this is wise, for perfect symmetry of features and a well-rounded well-shaped head are necessary to give charm to the ear-revealing coiffure.

But even though you tuck your ears underneath waves of hair, you still will feel that your toilette is not complete unless you have taken every care to insure their rosy daintiness.

The ears should be kept scrupulously clean without and within. This does not mean strenuously scrubbing them or filling them with soapsuds. On the contrary, great care should be exercised in bathing, swimming and shampooing to avoid leaving water in the ears.

When your ears have water in them they feel clogged and uncomfortable and a roaring sound in them interferes with hearing. In such a case lean over first on one side, then the other, meantime gently shaking your head, long enough to allow the water to escape. Then carefully dry them. Otherwise your ears may become chapped and will be most susceptible to chill and cold—a condition as uncomfortable as it is dangerous.

Include your ears and the portions of your neck back of your ears in your daily bath in soa ndp water. This suggestion may seem superfluous, but it is amazing how few persons succeed in keeping ears and neck immaculate.

Be careful about your fur collars. Cleanse them by rubbing them over from time to time with a bit of white cotton cloth, dampened with benzine. Otherwise they will accumulate dust and deposit it on your chin, neck and ears, causing blackheads as well as grimy appearance.

It is well to complete the cleansing of your ears by going over them with a bit of absorbent cotton dampened with denatured alcohol. This will stir up circulation and insure the rosy tips that are so becoming.

Provided you use perfume, a drop or two of your favorite essence rubbed just back of each ear will in mingling with the warmth of your body send out delicate fragrance.

To learn to listen well is to gain distinct charm through our ears.

Listen with real interest. Nothing is more soothing, more flattering, more comforting than to be listened to with attention and appreciative sympathy. Cultivate this art, not as a pose, but as the natural expression of kindly interest in the person who is talking to you, be that person great or small, of high or low degree.

The woman who is a good listener has discovered one of the greatest secrets of charm and popularity. And the radical sympathy back of this gift of listening will illuminate her face with beauty of the soul which knows no age.

Gas globes often become so discolored that ordinary washing fails to restore their brightness. If they are treated as follows a distinct improvement will be noticed: Give them a good soaking in hot soda water. Afterwards scrub hard in lukewarm water, to which has been added a teaspoonful of ammonia. Rinse in clean water and allow to drain till dry.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

HUMAN HEARTS

OUT in Vanity Fair there is laughter and play, and in Vanity Fair folks change right into day; there is music and song while the light-hearted throng in their revel and frolic wear glad hours away. It was rumored that Greed and Deceit lingered there, and that Malice and Hate for men's good set their snare, that old Envy and Spite lived in cruel delight and that Folly was Queen in gay Vanity Fair; but it isn't as bad as the world used to claim, out in Vanity Fair where folks hunger for fame, where men and women are glad when they dare not be sad, and where life (as they count it) is only a game. For though laughter and frolic is all that they ask, and though none settle down to dry a tear or sigh, there are those who declare that in Vanity Fair all this frivol and flutter is only a mask. I wonder sometimes if it cannot be true: that there's loving and longing and hope and despair, that a smile may perchance hide the shade of a care, that despite all the glow of the glittering show, human hearts do not change in gay Vanity Fair!

BELIEVE IN LUCK?

IT'S THE WORST HABIT IN THE WOLRD

By Beatrice Fairfax

Who Holds a Unique Position in the Writing World as an Authority on the Problems of Girls.

THERE isn't any worse luck in the world than to believe in luck. What possible evil can come to you through a black cat a crossing your path at the beginning of a journey if you don't trip over the cat and wreck your prospects by being so terrified that you bungle everything you do?

How can your marriage go on the rocks because it is performed on May 1 instead of April 30, unless you invite catastrophe by keeping your mind everlastingly on the dread thought that there is a superstition about being married in May?

There is a definite relationship between superstition and belief in luck or good fortune. Superstition is (according to the dictionary if self) a belief founded on irrational feelings, especially of fear. And the same authority defines luck as "that which chances to a person, whether for good or for ill."

Directly you believe that your life is a matter of chance and that things happen to you without your volition or invitation, of course you are going to be afraid of happening to do the wrong thing and thereby offending or neglecting fortune.

Start believing in "Lady Luck," and not in yourself, and you feel like a marionette with an invisible and powerful hand pulling the strings. A jerky and highly unpleasant feeling that!

"You have all the luck!" is a pet expression of folks who believe that their friends get all the prizes out of life's grab bag while they get the wads of tissue paper in which Madame Chance has forgotten to wrap any tid-bits.

Luck is generally a name given by envious or dull or lazy folks to the things they imagine just tumbled off the tree of life into other folks' laps. But what the dulard or the sloth calls "luck" is generally the result of thought and effort, and courage combined into one tour de force for conquering mischance.

Isn't your idea of luck, the thing that happens to some one else and that you'd enjoy having happen to you? But things don't merely "happen" to us. We all invite our fate by our actions and our beliefs. What you call luck is at least 75 per cent. honest reward of merit.

There are folks who are called "lucky dogs" because all they touch seems to come out well. In most cases it is either merely a case of "seems"—or else the victory is due to an honestly planned and bravely fought campaign.

I know two girls who graduated from school ten years ago with about equal assets in mentality, good looks, social position and youth. One of them was poor and the other wealthy. Violet was thoroughly dissatisfied with her poverty and the consequent necessity of going to work, while Rose was thrilled at the thought of traveling and entertaining and enjoying life now that her school days were over.

Violet went to work only because she had to. But she worked hard, because she had no illusions about a future she had not made a valiant effort to secure and assure. Rose plunged into a round of social gayeties.

Today Rose is a discontented, bitter, restless woman. The free gifts from life which seemed to be her lucky endowment were handicaps to progress. The struggle Violet had to make has brought out her strength and sweetness, and she has progressed to the point of being a distinguished and important woman. Rose often looks at Violet and says:

"You have all the luck!"

This is about the only time I've ever heard the expression used correctly. Violet did have all the luck—in having no sense of luck or good fortune or kindred superstitions to keep her from a conservative effort to make her way in the world.

Nothing comes to you unless you earn it. Almost all you earn comes to you. You may not enjoy the fruits of your efforts and beliefs, but unless you change your beliefs and actions you can't do much to alter the crop springing up from them.

The folks you call lucky, generally had an inspiration which helped them on toward achievement. That is true. But the inspiration came as a result of a great deal of thought and effort. The thing you call luck is generally just what folks have invited by a bright and eager and hopeful viewpoint and a willingness to work so hard that luck just couldn't be against them.

You can't invite a worse "run of luck" than to believe in mere chance of fortune. You can't do more to make "Lady Luck" smile on you than to ignore her, and go out and hew your way to success.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Among the strange birds, beasts, and fish discovered in Brazil are vampire bats, flat fish with a poison spike in their tails, and vultures which make noises very much like dogs barking.

REED, RODS AND RINGS

REED furniture, unfinished, can be used all spring and summer. In the fall, you can take it inside and finish it. Use weathered oak wood dye on a big easy chair for the living room.

EARLY ENGLISH wood dye is 75 cents a pint. A rich, dark stain. Looks well with gay colored cushions. Weathered oak dye is 60 cents a pint. Not quite so dark as the Early English.

BROWN mahogany wood dye is 85 cents a pint. Walnut is 75 cents. Oak dyes, such as Fumed, Mission, Gray, are only 60 cents a pint. Very easy to use.

A SHELLAC SUBSTITUTE is sometimes used over flat paint or stain. On chairs, tables, etc. 65 cents a pint. Saves the decorations and delicate work.

CURTAINS hang better if put on flat rods. On brackets. Single, 30 cents, double, 65 cents. Brass. Guaranteed rustless. If you want white enameled ones, pay 50 cents (single) or $1.00 (double). The double ones hold both the overdraperies and the valance. Or, hang glass curtains on the under rod, and plain strips of heavier material on the outside rod.

RINGS are often sewed to a tape on the underside of heavy curtains. You can slide them together at night so easily. They help thick material to hang more gracefully.

A COMBINATION of shade and curtain is made of guaranteed wool-and-cotton fabric. It is sunproof and will not wrinkle. Also, dustproof. It is attached to patent, adjustable roller. Can easily be removed or washed. Plain, striped or figured. Neutral tones, or any lovely color. You cannot see through them at night. Made to fit your windows. Prices, reasonable. Practical. Decorative.

A ROUND REED table, with shelf underneath, is only $5.00. Unfinished. Well made. About a yard across top.

LAMP to go with it is $5.00. Wired for one bulb. You could put a double socket in it.

REED CHAIRS of good quality, unfinished, are $4.00 and up. Well made. Nice styles.

ASK ME about what to buy for your home, your children, yourself or your husband. Gifts, prizes, toys, everything a woman wants to buy. I'll answer promptly. No reply made unless full name and address is given and loose stamp enclosed. DO NOT send envelope.

Cannot Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Enough. Sick Women Read This Letter

Charleston, S. C. — "I was completely run-down and not able to do my housework. I just dragged myself around and did not have energy enough to get up when I sat down. I read advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in your books and learned about it. I got benefit from the very first bottle. I continued to take it for some time, and now I am doing all my own work, even washing and ironing, and never felt better in my life. I tell all my friends that the change in my health is due to but one thing and that is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. Annie Young, 16 Amherst St., Charleston, S.C.

The reason for such a letter from Mrs. Young is apparent. She got well and is grateful. Recently a nation-wide canvass of women purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was made, and 98 out of 100 reported that they received benefit from taking it.

CHICKIE

By ELENORE MEHERIN

Seething Life of a Lovely Boston Girl of This Strange Today

A WHITE moon rode coldly in a leaden sky. A small, delicate cloud fluttered out suddenly, casting this way and that, frightened like a child that is lost. Chickie traced it. She felt sad. She wanted Barry's arms about her. She wanted him to be looking down at her. Her eyes stole about his face, growing warm because he looked so strong and bautiful to her.

"Oh—hello, dear," he said, noting her to him.

It was pain that she took with a sharp, aching joy. She laughed, feeling her eyes wet. "Hey, there, Redhead! I love you too much."

She knew what Mary meant when she said, "When you love, you suffer—you want to suffer."

Half teasing now, she asked: "Does it make thee glad, Barry, when I smile?"

"And broken hearted when I'm gloomy."

"Avast—see the whole aorta going to smash!"

She smiled. She thought wistfully: "But that's the way it is with me."

Her mood rose to a sparkling gayety—even when he came to his window and grinned up at her. She couldn't hide the pleased flush staining her cheeks.

Janina became aware of this and used to watch with veiled amusement, sometimes dropping a note on Chickie's desk, other times jabbing her with her elbow and giving a knowing wink. She said one morning: "No you're putting all your eggs in one basket, Chickie?"

"What do you mean, Janina dear? Something quite deep and subtle, I take it."

"You get me, kid, all right. After all I may care for training behold the fruit of my labors! Well, Red's a nice boy, but have you figured, baby, that by the time he has money enough to keep an expensive decoration like you—if you'll pardon the word—ornamental—"

"Why—cruel, Janina? My charms will grow with my years."

"You know it! They'll grow wicked and wilder like every thing else about it. A girl's a fool if she does it, get herself planted in a beautiful gardinere when she still can grace it. You see it gives one such a nice setting to wither away in. But who do you think is going to find—oh hasbeen—pottery for a plant that is already in the sere and yellow leaf?"

Inwardly, though you were the great believer in love?"

"Chickie—fine talk. I've love—don't let it lose you! That's the tragedy of women! Would the most reckless autoist drive a car down a steep grade unless he was sure of his brakes? But that's what this female sex does. They shout: 'Here goes to glory.' Their hearts are the engines—the fools worn to use their minds as the brake. They think it magnificent to plunge headlong. Well—that road goes over the bank nine time out of ten."

Chickie laughed: "Grand smash-up—all lives lost. Odd, isn't it, Janina, dear, that the victims don't seem to realize the extent of their injuries? Seem to like their hurts, I know several."

"Lots of bandages in the world to hide our sores from prying eyes, baby. Had enough to play the fool without shouting it from the housetops. Chickie, do you mean to tell me that a fellow like Jake has no attraction for you?"

Chickie winced—her face scarlet. She said flippantly: "Well, Janina, soap and water have a great attraction for me. Jake's no nice and clean always and so spirited, of course I find him agreeable."

"That's honester than I expected." Janina crumbled the bread—forgetting Chickie for the moment. Finally she smiled: "Chickie, I believe Jake would marry you."

"And I believe that he shall not!"

"Don't tell me, Chickie, that you'd refuse Jake. If you like him enough to kiss him—oh, don't deny it! Put up any kind of a bluff to your own thoughts, but the girl doesn't live that wouldn't blush and like Jake's mark kissed her. I don't care how proud and pure she is! All made the same—all have a spark in our wicked and too many in our hearts. You like Jake enough for that—marry him, and with all the divine luxuries of linen and servants you'd be on your knees with rapture in three months."

"Plant even a very little love in a nice garden and it grows. That's true. And the converse likewise holds: Set the most flourishing love you can find on the rock of poverty and it dies."

Chickie was always a little shaken when Janina, in one of the fine silver garment she draped about life, and low especially about love. She saw herself whimsically and got up and left the leaves brown and falling. She laughed.

She began to wonder if they ought not scheme someway to hasten money and success. She began to save a little.

Then a delightful thing happened. She got a raise of $15 a month. She was now earning $125. In a year, if she put away $25 each month, that would give her $300. Quite a stupendous sum to have all at once—enough to pay down on the living room furniture!

With a shy giggle she spoke of it to Barry. "I'm turning heiress, Mr. Red. Do you know that in a year I'll have $300?"

"And what, sweet one, will you do with it? Take a world tour or buy up the Kimberly diamond mines?"

She flushed and smiled. "I have other plans — original - like." Hating, not at all sure of herself, she went on: "Why, my dear, kind friend, I'm to save up. In four years I'll have $1,200. Isn't that staggering? So you see — why, two people can do quite a lot with vast riches like that!"

His mouth drew straight and pale. She noticed that his hands on the steering wheel clenched, the knuckles shiny. She slid down a little in the seat. He said, without looking at her: "Chickie, you're not to dream of such a thing! You just enjoy every cent you earn. Four years—why, how do you know what may happen by then?"

Stella Wilson, on her way to the dressing room, passed Chickie's desk. She walked with a kind of angry violence that struck Chickie with curiosity. Half an hour later, Stella had not returned.

A note from Janina dropped in Chickie's lap. "Wonder what's biting the old girl now. Better go out and kid her along. You're good at the soft stuff. Maybe her life long suitor has given her the ditch as I've predicted he would."

Stella was given to moods of frightful depression. Chickie was tacitly elected by the four other girls in the office to act as sympathizer; to listen pityingly while Stella poured out the grievances of her thirty years.

The office was acquainted with Stella's fictitious woes. She was brought up with two older sisters under strict Methodist discipline. These two sisters were now married and still dependent upon their father for support.

They regarded Stella as "the baby." Even at her present age they exercised vigilant censorship over her personal affairs. She came home late they or the father and mother demanded an explanation. On the rare occasions when she had a caller they saw that the parlor door was left open. Stella declared that one of the four was everlastingly passing up or down the hall.

The upshot of it was that Stella had no poise, no self-sufficiency, no repose. She was a good looking girl, but her flighty mind gave the lie to her strong attractive face. She was a flat failure with men, except for John Blakely. John had been in the range of prospecting for seven years. He was Stella's perennial hope of matrimony. Twice in the six months she had been in the office he had taken her dancing. She wore roses to work the next day and typed in a dream, believing that at last John had capitulated. At twenty-four she could have married him. Her mother, in some mysterious way—whether by passing down the hall, sneezing or an unaspicious cough—was credited with scaring him off. He never quite made up his mind again.

Janina and she had frequent clashes. Once Janina said: "Stella I'll give you a tip. Follow it and you'll land a husband in a month.

"Here it is—live up to the guarantee given by your pals. You've got the up-and-down look, why don't you take your cue from that and sit quiet on your throne when a man comes all primed to bend the knee? Sit—as the fine woman they serve. They think she must be pretty good to get them to her feet. They value the thing that costs whether they've got to pay in money or in time or in labor. Let them hop to it and wait on you. Put them out—inconvenience them—run them ragged! Pay them with a sweet smile, a gentle look —oh, as you will. They'll forget their trouble and remember their gain.

"Another thing—don't flash all your idiotic ideas in th. first sitting. They'll keep. Throw a quiet over the pool and the won't see how shallow it is. Leave them something to angle for. Once they see to the bottom it's goodby to the best of us."

At first Stella listened as though the word of revelation were forthcoming. When the dig took on a personal twist, her lips curved with tigerish indignation. She stalked out of the dressing room, banging the door. She didn't speak to Janina for two weeks.

She had the look of an outraged animal on her face now as Chickie found her sitting on the window sill, smoking. Her eyes were red. She averted her head sharply: "Well—is Lewis asking where I am?"

"No." Chickie slipped about Stella's waist. "Anything wrong?"

Tartly: "Nothing."

"Headache, Stella? Want an aspirin?" Janina has some in her desk."

"No, I make! Stella's feet were tapping despondently against the wall. "Aspirin! If I had the courage of my convictions, it's not aspirin I'd take."

Stella's mouth began to tremble. She pressed her knuckles against her chin. But she listened additional to the balm Chickie had learned to pour very soothingly over Stella's hurts.

She kept biting her lip and frowning. Tears trickled slowly into her eyes.

"Humph—well, you'll know of it, anyhow." Grudgingly she drew an envelope from her pocket and half flung it at Chickie. "Here's a nice for some people, doesn't it? But you bet if I had a gun he'd not get away with it."

HEROINES OF HISTORY

The Shy Little Girl Who Became the Swedish Nightingale

A CITY on its feet, waving and cheering in a very abandon of enthusiasm, and finally settling down to sure deep and unwaving admiration and love as seldom has been lavished upon a public character, attaches to the name of Jenny Lind.

Nor was her popularity confined to the American metropolis. Her visit to this country won the people of the United States so completely that even now, thirty years after her golden voice has been silenced by death, tales still are told of her sweetness and beauty.

She "Swedish Nightingale" was the daughter of a somewhat obscure teacher of languages. Those who hold to the theory of reincarnation often cite her as proof of their claim, since her knowledge of music appeared to be inborn, and demonstrated even before she could speak.

At the age of three Jenny Lind could repeat a song once heard, with remarkable exactness. When she was nine she began the study of music at Stockholm. Three years later her upper notes lost their sweetness, and then came a time of depression, amounting almost to despair for the small girl and those who had entertained high hope for her. But the period quality returned as suddenly as it had gone when she was sixteen. It was then that she was sent to Paris to become a pupil of Garcia.

Oddly enough her appearance was against her at the beginning of her career, for Jenny Lind was anything but an attractive child. She was awkard and shy to such a degree that those who had to do with the stage declared that never never would the public accept such gaucherie as

But her lack of physique was metamorphosed by the years, and in 1860 her fame as a vocalist extended throughout Europe.

It was in that year that an enterprising showman—none other than P. T. Barnum—recided the time had come to bring to his own country the Scandinavian songbird. He consented to cross the ocean, and was billed to appear in New York.

A bit doubtfully at first, but with growing excitement as enthusiasm mounted, the public bought tickets for her first appearance—paying fabulous prices according to the rates in those days. And her first appearance in America sealed her success. She was called the greatest singer of all time.

During her visit to Boston she met Otto Goldschmidt, a skilled pianist and conductor. They became friends. Soon friendship turned to love. When Jenny Lind became Mrs. Goldschmidt she retired from the stage and except when she sang to aid charity, her voice never again was heard by the public.

Jenny Lind died in London, where she spent the last years of her life, in 1887.

A Fatal Interruption

Baltimore girl says she is going to sue a hammock manufacturing concern for $10,000 damages. The moon was shining brightly, the stars were twinkling, a soft breeze whistled through the trees, and her boy friend was just about to propose after two years' delay when the hammock broke and spilled everything.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

"YOU [illegible] asked [illegible] to [illegible] and [illegible] again working on a [illegible] when [illegible] dollar [illegible] was a [illegible] of [illegible] smaller [illegible] ticks me, too. But I'm much inclined to doubt that the boy isn't quite responsible for what he's doing. You know, I never thought for a minute that Neal was actually vicious—a criminal at heart—I mean a deliberate thief," he fumbled.

By Ann Lisle

"You're tired" I managed, after casting about for something to excuse Jim to myself.

"You're right. I'm [illegible] aware [illegible] that's [illegible] a [illegible] travel home to dinner. I'll be more in shape to go into details after I've eaten. Anyway, as you can guess from all [illegible] and two and a half [illegible] the fact that's the answer, the lad on the dock got away. Every respect it was Neal. I'll swear it was Neal. And you can rest assured I haven't left a stone unturned in the last twenty-four hours to get on the track of the boy.

"To-night I'll hand [illegible] to stubbornly certain that it wasn't Neal that Evvy had seen. But in any event I felt stirred to take up the search with even greater vigor than I've been pursuing.

But one thing seemed blessedly certain—at least in finding Neal it at last seemed. For twenty-four hours he had been searching for Neal—for my brother—but I knew it was for my sake—not for Neal's. I could guess without his telling me that [illegible] without [illegible] me [illegible] Evvy took [illegible] I wouldn't [illegible] would offer me money [illegible] few weeks before [illegible] offered financial help [illegible] month's [illegible] of Neal and my faith in him that pride had driven me to reject his offer. And then Jim's pride took fire in turn and his vowed that he'd never again offer to help unless I begged him to.

My eyes misted and my heart beat with slow, delicious languor as I realized how Jim had abased himself with me and what is my life work. I put out my hand to take Jim's. But something stopped me just as I was about to touch him but he was sound asleep.

I sank back quietly as I was [illegible] to [illegible] Jim [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] knowing [illegible] Jim [illegible] a spectacle of himself, I rose [illegible] quietly as neither the taxi driver nor our doorman should take [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible] finding him asleep, [illegible] and [illegible] daylight.

Jim looked, grinned boyishly [illegible] about sorry Winks, and then as the taxi stepped at our door he got out and handed me to the sidewalk with the grace of which he is past master.

It wasn't until after dinner however, that he showed any signs of being willing to return to the subject so near my heart. Although I longed to hear every syllable of what had happened from the moment I left Evvy [illegible] the man on the dock to the time when Jim returned defeated in his search for Neal, I held myself in leash until Jim was ready to talk.

A READER.

THERE is only one thing in the world that is unlucky. That is to believe in luck. Superstitions are rooted in fear and have no power save that which our terrified thoughts give them. The superstition about the month of May is rooted in an attribute of the pagan deity who was thought to preside over the month hundreds of years ago.

And all there is to the whole nonsensical and stupid idea is the amount of terror folks let it put into their hearts. Years ago I broke a mirror, and when folks began informing me that seven years of bad luck were due something in my youthful spirit refused to be hypnotized by that thought and insisted that seven years of good luck were just as likely to follow if only I held firmly to the thought.

The most wonderful opportunity of my lifetime came soon after. It had nothing to do with a broken mirror of course, but I thought it had—and because I gave my own personal superstition about good luck following on broken mirrors!

Now you start realizing that May is a beautiful month, the harbinger of Summer and part of God's calendar of beauty. Be sure that your May marriage is going to lead to happiness, and don't let any one come into the garden of your mind and plant unwelcome seeds that will come up in weeds of fear and darkness and doubt.

"As a man taketh in his heart, so is he." Keep your expectation filled with faith in good, and prove to superstition that you need not to be bewitched by it.

On Monday our PARIS FASHION LETTER will be printed here. Watch for it.

SOAP AND WATER FOR UNCLEAN DRAMA

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

IT'S a forgone conclusion that one of these days the theatre is going to be a safe and wholesome place to send your children—under all circumstances and at all times. For Mayor Curley is on the well known and frequently mentioned war-path against questionable entertainment; and with John J. Casey as his penetrating right eye and chief of staff the unclean drama is in for a drubbing—or should I say scrubbing. In any event—and I have Mr. Casey's solemn word for it—from this time forward purity is the watchword, especially back of the curtain line. Bare legs, no matter how shapely, coarse jokes and suggestive songs no longer pass for art in Mr. Casey's department of theatrical investigation and regulation.

THEATRES MUST BE MORALLY SPOTLESS IS MAYOR CURLEY'S POSITIVE DICTUM.

THE little affair at Mayor Curley's office the other day, when the theatre managers were lined up for inspection and advice, was no sudden official inspiration. Mr. Casey concedes that much. "So many complaints had been sent to the mayor," he explained yesterday, "that the subject could no longer be ignored. Censorship, ther directed by public officials or conducted by private associations, is obnoxious to the average American, but how are you going to escape it if certain producers persist in parading semi-nude women across their stages? We have no desire to set up a code of morals for anybody, but city regulations forbid indecency in any form in theatrical entertainment. And we're going to make the regulations stand for something more than a joke. Like the fond mother and her naughty son, whose mouth she washed with soap and water, this department of the mayor's office is mixing a nice batch of soap and water for application upon the bad boys of the stage."

OF course, the theatre isn't as bad as it has been painted; for the most part it holds to ideals that are worthy and sticks close to the straight and narrow. "But playwrights will use profanity for cheap laughs," explained Mr. Casey, "and musical show producers apparently are beset with the idea that nudity and vulgarity are essential to success. All I can say is that these things, in the future, will guarantee positive failure in Boston. The mayor's mind is made up—wherever he finds indecency he will wipe it out and I believe he will take the shortest possible cut in his cleaning up process. Let me emphasize that we want to be fair and that we are not prudes or kill-joys. We simply want a clean stage. Curiously enough, whenever we run across opposition to our toning down operations the cry is always sent to the heavens that we are interfering with art—destroying art. Foreign performers call us provincial and say we have no appreciation for the beautiful. Why, a dancer who makes the equivalent to $25 a week in Europe is likely to draw $500 a week here because she has a saucy song and a willingness to wear so little that nothing is left to the imagination. And when we request the use of some decent drapery I am assailed for attempting to murder art in cold blood. It seems that art must go undressed or sacrifice its virtue."

Mr. Casey proposes to do a little cleansing

WHAT Mr. Casey cannot understand, and he admits he has pondered on the subject many hours, is the attitude of certain producers of big musical shows who, knowing Boston regulations and restrictions, make no attempt to do any house cleaning on their own account but always wait for official censoring. "It must be that they crave publicity," he suggested, "hoping that something drastic may happen—something that will still allow the performance to go on but which will get them into the public prints. In fact one producer did make that proposition to me this season: 'Just let me run the show my way one night,' he urged, 'and I'll willingly stand for any cuts you make on the next performance.' When I pressed him a reason he finally admitted that it would make great publicity for the show. As a matter of fact, I think it is poor publicity —especially with decent people, and I believe a great majority of playgoers prefer a clean to a dirty stage.

"OF course," Mr. Casey was saying, "theatre managers cannot always control performers. A show may be trimmed to fit our idea of decency and run along in high refinement for a performance or two. Then a performer will discover that some of his best gags are dying on the footlights because the dirt has been removed and in desperation he takes a chance and goes back to the old stuff. He may get away with it if the manager of the theatre is not in the house, or it may get reported, and then we discover that all our purifying has been in vain. Naturally, this office cannot attend every performance in every theatre, but plans are being made that will keep performers within bounds in the future. It is not going to be safe to go back to the lines we cut from the dialogue; in fact, it is going to be particularly dangerous."

"WHEN you were told that the worst offenders move in high places —or places where the highest rate is charged for entertainment. "I have always found that musical revues get the most attention and burlesque the least," said Mr. Casey. "As the mayor told the managers the other day, if you can only clean the top of the house the bottom will take care of itself. The cleanest musical entertainment in Boston today is found in the burlesque theatres. The Columbia Amusement Company, which controls the shows playing the Gayety and Casino, has its own board of censors and franchise owners are made to behave. We have very little trouble with them."

ONCE more Mr. Casey reminded you that he was no prude and that soapsy entertainment was all right in every particular until it reached those leers and indecent jokes. "That's where we draw the line," he said with a little more than usual firmness, "and it's going to be a sharp line."

"And infractions, when you find them?" I asked

REAL HISTORY SHOWN IN 'AMERICA'

Nothing so thrilling as the midnight ride of Paul Revere, now a heart pounding feature of D. W. Griffith's latest film production, America, has been seen in Boston since the chariot race of Ben Hur. The terrific pace of the ride on his sacred errand, jumping walls and ditches that upset or blocked his pursuers, is portrayed with a nerve shooting effect one will long remember.

At the time of this famous ride Paul Revere was in his forties, and lived in North square, Boston, and working at the trade of silversmith. He was strongly against the British ways and laws, and as hardy as a pine tree. Like all boys of his day he was apprenticed to his work in precious metals at an early age, but gave up that job for dentistry before he was well established, and later turned back to his first love as a silversmith. The well-to-do families did not please Revere by their preference for imported luxuries and silver vessels not made at home.

Paul Revere was really an "out from the shoulder" kind of man bodily vigorous and absolutely without fear. But his greatest fortune was in having one greatest of press agents, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, who wrote the poem immortalizing the ride.

Paul Revere's daring ride covered thirteen miles, and warned Hancock and Adams whom the British wanted to capture above all others.

Baseball Easy Game for Energetic Madge

Tomboys, so-called, usually turn out to be the most attractive girls and this is undoubtedly true of Madge Bellamy, who appears with James Kirkwood and Lila Lee in "Love's Whirlpool," which comes to the Fenway Theatre for a week's run today. When she was a youngster in Denver, whence her family had removed from Hillsboro, Tex., her birthplace, Miss Bellamy took a keen delight in emulating the boys in all their sports.

"I could run faster than any of them," Miss Bellamy boasts, "and I was almost as good at playing baseball. My first starring act was in climbing trees, especially apple trees is the climbing games I outshone all the boys. And I've had the climbing habit ever since, even if it is only to get up the rungs of the celluloid ladder of fame."

At this Miss Bellamy has done very well. Though only twenty, she has played stellar roles in a number of pictures and is one of the screen's loveliest young players.

ACTORS' BENEFIT

The annual Actors' Fund Benefit will be held at the Colonial Theatre Friday afternoon, April 11. The program will be filled by players and entertainers from every theatre in Boston, and Daniel Frohman, president of the society, has arranged for the appearance of several stars who will come from New York especially for the occasion. Seats will go on sale next Thursday, April 3, at the Colonial box office.

NEXT WEEK'S NEW BILLS

PARK—"Under the Red Robe." The new Cosmopolitan $1,500,000 photoplay, adapted from Stanley Weyman's famous dramatic romance bearing the same title. A story of France in the reign of Louis XIII. The cast is headed by Robert B. Mantell, John Charles Thomas and Alma Rubens. Called by New York reviewers a thrilling visualization of the most colorful period in French history. Adaptation by Bayard Veiller, with settings by Joseph Urban and direction by Alan Crosland.

FENWAY—(Opening today) "Love's Whirlpool." Photoplay thriller adapted from Martha Lord's story, "The Inner Sight." Unusual in that in spite of its stirring action there are no fights and not a drink is taken. Featured in the cast are James Kirkwood, Lila Lee and Madge Bellamy. Adapted by Elliott Clawason and Bruce Mitchell and directed by Mr. Mitchell. Other Paramount features.

SOMERVILLE—(Stock) "Icebound," the Pulitzer prize play of 1923. Written by Owen Davis and played with success in New York and other cities. Marks the return to the Somerville players of Ann MacDonald in the principal feminine role. Other important roles will be taken by Bernard Nedell, Leo Linhard, Frank Thomas, Louise Huntington and Mabel Colcord.

• • •

WILBUR—"The Gingham Girl." A musical play featuring Eddie Buzzell that played here two seasons ago under another title and then captured and held Broadway for a season. Book by Daniel Kusell, lyrics by Neville Fleeson and music by Albert von Tilzer.

• • •

PLYMOUTH—Grant Mitchell in "The Whole Town's Talking." Return engagement. A farce by John Emerson and Anita Loos. Supporting Mr. Mitchell are Frank Lalor, Lucia Moore, June Bradley, Catherine Owen and Harold Slater.

• • •

ST. JAMES—(Stock) "Peg O' My Heart." Comedy by J. Hartley Manners which once served Laurette Taylor's talents. Miss Mason will appear as Peg.

ROUGH RIDERS FROM OLD ISRAEL

Though history lacks record of equestrians among the early Egyptians and Israelites, the actors and actresses playing principal roles in the Biblical spectacle of "The Ten Commandments," at the Tremont Theatre, had to be rough riders, and "twas no side saddle business for the ladies. Estelle Taylor practiced on a chariot steed and Leatrice Joy rode muleback, while Rod La Rocque succeeded in conquering a seat on a bucking broncho. Even the distinguished Theodore Roberts, his long Moses garments trailing behind, rode to work like a Canterbury pilgrim.

No high-powered limousines nor autobusses for "The Ten Commandments" players when they went on location! You see, the western desert stretch that they named Egypt, and where the ancient scenes were made, was so deep in loose sand that neither Rivver nor Rolls Royce could negotiate it. The only practicable conveyance was team and sand sledge, and they just crawled.

Any day one might meet Miriam or the Queen of Egypt on the queer est mount, and there were no run aways, but the spills were many. Egypt and Israel made a grotesque procession.

The Eighteenth Century Symphony Orchestra, Raffaele Martino, conducting, will give its next candle light concert Tuesday evening, April 8, in Jordan Hall. The program, as usual, is made up of compositions of the early masters, including Dall' Abaco, Humphries, Gluck, Sammartini, Bocchetini, Scarlatti, Corelli, Couperin, Bach, Handel, Haydn and Mozart.

MANIAC BLAMED FOR FIRES AT BINGHAMTON

Entire New York City Joins in Search for Menacer of Fifty Lives

Binghamton, N. Y., March 31.—Discovery of new plots of the fire-bug, who touched off two big apartment houses in the exclusive residential district on the west side within the last two days, led today to the well-established theory that the work is that of a maniac.

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

By William F. Kirk

I AM gitting quite intereated in Aster-onnomy, sed Ma last nite. Thare was a pro-fessor talking at our Wimmens Lera, yesterdav. He tonld us lots about the hevings that was nevver dreemed of beefoar, sed Ma.

It wuddent talk much of a professor to dazzel that bunch of wimmen, sed Pa. I think it is high time, sed Pa, that the wimmen thet enoar of thare husbands comfort & less about the stars & commits & plannits, etc., sed Pa. If you want to think of stars, wife, sed Pa, think of me. I am a star, sed Pa.

You are are-ron, sed Ma.

You are like a star sum nites sed Ma. You are hard to find some nites

I shine too doarn, I" sed Pa

Not like you used to beefoar Mister Volsted put it eaver, sed Ma

But I am brigvnt, ain't I? sed Pa.

If you insist, sed Ma

I suppose that pro-fessor which talked to you ladies was a swell looking gink, wasent he? sed Pa.

He looked like a thinker & a dreemer, sed Ma. Sum of the ladys was quite wild about him Ma sed, but you know me, sed Ma, I dount git all fussed up eav-strangers

No, sed Ma, I reefuse to compair them with you & that is why I nevver pay much attenshun to them.

I suppose sum of the ladys thare was thinking they shud be living on larger & sweller plannits than this poor littel erth, wasent they? sed Pa.

I dount know, sed Ma. But I am reely much intereated in this grate Uny-verst. I had no idee it was so larce

It is large enuff, O. K., sed Pa. It seems too bad we have with us such a large Uny-verst & no chanst to look it all eaver beefore we croke, sed Pa. I wud like to spend a few years on every plannit beefoar I croke, sed Pa.

Tuou dount want much, do you? sed Ma. I am satisfied if I see the butiful things on this earth beefoar I go, sed Ma.

I dount want to go at all, I sed. I wish I cud stay about twenty-ons years old & Be the hevvyweight champeen of the wurld for about a milyun yeers, I sed

Yes, sed Ma, he gits that from you. While I have two (2) such wonderful prespul in my f ilij, sed Ma, I do not cair who lives on all them other plannits, sed Ma.

Ma is prtty smart, that is why she knows how smart Pa & Mo le.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

EVERY American home has at least one pantry prowler in the family. A pantry prowler is a male or female who goes down to the kitchen and robs the cupboard while the rest of the folks are asleep.

MOST of them wear gloves so that they won't leave their finger prints on the cake.

ONE woman caught her daughter carrying a jimmy. She said she used it to pry open some of her sister's biscuits.

A MOTHER with three or four children has a hard time keeping any food in the house over night. It's getting so that she has to equip her cookies with burglar alarms.

IF she makes a chocolate pudding for the following day, the only way she can be sure of having it is to sleep with it under her pillow.

THESE midnight raiders will eat anything that isn't nailed down.

ONE woman put a couple of mouse traps in the pantry and in the morning she found nothing in them except her husband's fingers.

HE was so mean he even tried to steal the cheese out of the traps. Every mouse in the neighborhood grew up to hate him.

NOW when he goes down to the pantry the mice all sit in the corner and beam hating.

ONE woman used to fool her husband by hiding his teeth when he went to bed. And he couldn't do much damage to her refrigerator with his gums.

ANOTHER dame had a husband who always went down to the kitchen at 2 a. m., and ate in the dark. She cured him by putting three or four lumps of coal in a cut glass dish.

HE ate it all, thinking it was rock candy.

THE next morning she found him picking his teeth with a poker.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

By Mark Sullivan

A Woman Whose Opinions Napoleon Valued.

IN Paris in the last half of the eighteenth century a very happy family lived. They were aristocrats. The father held an official position at court and he was the nephew of a minister to the King, Louis XVI.

His name was Vergennes and in his home with his wife and two charming young daughters all was peace and happiness.

Then came the terrible year of '89." Vergennes left his post with the royalists and enlisted with the revolutionists. Because of his adherence to the cause of liberty he gave his life and was guillotined in 1794.

Paris was not safe now for any one who had ever been an aristocrat—not matter what their allegiance was—so the stricken widow and her two daughters fled to the quiet valley of the Montmorency.

Here grew up the two girls in the quiet of the country, their education being directed by their mother and a former friend of their father's—M. de Remusat.

During the long Winter evenings and in the lovely Summer twilights the eldest daughter and the cultured friend spent many happy hours together, which resulted in their marriage, for Claire Vergennes, much to her mother's delight, married M. de Remusat.

Claire was sixteen Her husband was eighteen years her senior. When she was seventeen she was a mother. And as one of her biographers writes: 'Her education under the tuition of her husband continued at the cradle of her son."

It was while living in the country after Napoleon came into power that the friendship of Madame Vergennes and Josephine, who had been a friend of the former when she was Madame Beauharnais, was renewed. And it was through this association that M. de Remusat was installed at Fountainbleau as a member of Napoleon's suite, while his young wife was honored as lady-in-waiting to the Empress Josephine.

It was at court that this brilliant young woman shone. She was a woman of exceptional character and was cherished as the most helpful of all of the women of the court to the Empress.

Madame de Remusat was not only a woman of the highest qualities of womanhood, but she was brilliant as well. It is said that Napoleon and the great Talleyrand valued opinions highly and that she was sought after to discuss many affairs of importance, for her wisdom was unusual.

For many years, every evening, Madame de Remusat entered in her journal the happenings of the day. She was a born writer, and it was a very natural thing for her, when her official life was over, to write her "Memoirs of the Empire." This was followed by a splendid volume, "The Education f Women," which was a prophecy of what has taken place today regarding the improvement of such education.

But of all her distinguished attainments, she took pride only in being a devoted wife and mother. She died at the age of forty-one, and of her at the time of her death a confessor, the Abbe Duval, said:

"She served God in the world."

UNITED FRUIT COMPANY 25 YEARS OLD

Banquet to Be Tendered to A. W. Preston, Only President of Concern

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the United Fruit Co., a concern that has had but one president since its inception, is being celebrated today. This celebration, for the most part, is given over to appreciation for the twenty-five years of service of Andrew W. Preston, president of the concern, that has 67,000 employes; more than 20,000 stockholders, $100,000,000 of capital, seventy-three modern vessels operates 1,460 miles of railway and maintains churches, schools, laundries, ice plants, sewage system and electric light plants.

A. W. Preston

Radio fans will be interested in Mr. Preston's anniversary because of his part in making their evenings more enjoyable. Informed by the Boston American of the annoying interference in the Preston radio wireless station which was then operating on a low wave he immediately ordered the company operators to work on a higher wave to keep clear of the broadcast station programs, thereby winning the everlasting gratitude of the listeners-in.

Tonight at the Algonquin Club the directors of the concern will give a complimentary dinner to President Preston, at which the three vice-presidents, other executive officials and department heads throughout the country will be present.

Moorfield Storey of counsel for the United Fruit Company will welcome the president.

The Servant Problem

Editor Boston American:

I read with much interest Dr. Frank Crane's letter in the Boston American of March 11 on "The Servant Problem" or "Being Rich' family, who gave their experience with their servants, is simply the same old story with variations. The family girl who had become a capable wife, and then rich, could not avoid having difficulties with her servants. What chance had she of knowing the real meaning of good service? And allow me to say right here, the men or women she hired, if they belonged to the class of trained servants, soon found this mistress had not been used to experienced help. I know there are good and bad among domestic help, the same as in all classes of paid people.

If all men are born equal, does it seem right to those who, through no fault of their own, find themselves working as menials?

They are too idle to cook their food, they are too idle to reach across the table for it when it is put there for them. They are too idle to take care of their children, they are too idle to look after their clothes—in fact, they are too idle to do anything but enjoy themselves!

From all times we have heard "cleanliness is next to Godliness." Now, if there is any truth in this, I fail to see why any right-minded man or woman should think a bathtub is a luxury for a cook or any other servant in the house.

It is a necessity.

Again, we constantly hear "We pay such high wages!" Just think of the family who does not see what the same people pay for cars, dress, perfumes, flowers, candy, travel and all the other items, no numerous to mention, without one thought of regret. But the servants' wages! Oh, my goodness, the money which has to be paid to those necessary evils, who do the thousand and one things for the "idle rich," who are too helpless to do them for themselves, are written up and spoken of in terms which are neither kind nor just.

Worth Fifty Million, but Paid No Taxes

Secretary Mellon's Plan Would Reach the Rich

Attention has been called to the case of a man who died last year worth fifty million dollars. It appears that he had paid no Federal income taxes since 1916, and legally so.

Instead, he bought tax exempt bonds of his State and city, yielding 4½ per cent. Except for this he would have contributed over eight hundred and fifty thousand dollars towards the expenses of the Federal government.

Federal expenses were not one dollar less because he did not pay. Who, asks Mr. Barnes, did pay the eight hundred and fifty thousand dollars?

Obviously it was paid. The Federal government has gone on and met its expenses. In fact, it is now collecting a million dollars a day more than it needs, and continues to collect it because the Republican and Democratic parties in Congress cannot agree on just the proper method of reducing the income taxes we are paying.

Of course, you and I and the other possessors of moderate incomes paid the taxes which the rich man escaped. But if you or I had been in his place we would have done precisely what he did. Why should he risk his money in business when the present government rate of taxation on incomes over two hundred thousand dollars is 58 per cent.? That is, why should he take this risk of loss when the government takes away from him more than half of his profit if he wins?

Sit down and figure it out for yourself. You will soon find why rich men are taking their money out of business and putting it into these tax exempt securities, which now amounts to about twelve thousand million dollars and are increasing at the rate of over a thousand millions a year.

The whole opposition to Secretary Mellon's plan for income tax revision is based upon the mistaken belief that he wants to spare rich men—save them from paying income taxes.

He doesn't have to help them. They are now helping themselves. Thousands of rich men are doing with all or part of their incomes exactly what this rich man of Mr. Barnes' is doing. In spite of an enormous and unexampled increase in national wealth and national income, the money which the Federal government has collected from its income surtaxes has fallen from eight hundred million dollars in 1919 to four hundred million dollars in 1921 (the latest figures). That is, rich men are now escaping the payment of their fair share of the Federal taxes.

Secretary Mellon proposes to get them back into line again. He proposes to reduce the maximum surtax rates from 50 per cent. to 25 per cent. In financial estimates of this kind he is more likely to be right than anybody else in the country. And he has figured that this reduction in the surtax rate will increase the actual amount collected by the government from the surtaxes, because money will be put into enterprises whose profits are taxable, instead of into government securities whose interest is not taxable.

The Secretary of the Treasury has carefully estimated that by this method the government will annually collect over a hundred million dollars more in surtaxes than it now collects.

Now it happens that this sum, a hundred million dollars, is the amount required to pay the soldiers' bonus, which has already passed the House and is about to pass the Senate. Most of the opponents of the Mellon plan are advocates of the soldiers' bonus. By opposing the Mellon surtax rate revision, they are opposing a measure which would provide them means of paying the bonus without additional taxation. And the bogey of additional taxation is the only weapon which bonus foes have left in their hands.

Ugly Billboards

Standard Oil Sets a Good Example

A good spirit is shown by the Standard Oil Company in its decision to remove all of its billboards which ruin the scenic beauty of our countryside.

To be sure, this action of the Standard Oil Company in no way solves the problem, and probably does not even hasten its solution. The sites vacated by Standard Oil will be taken by other less patriotic advertisers.

The solution is in legislation forbidding desecration of the beauties of nature by individuals who happen to hold private property rights to portions of the earth's surface on which nature produces those beauties to delight the eye of the beholder.

The difficulty lies in our excessive concern over property rights. A property owner can do as he wants with what is considered as "his own."

And yet he could not station a man at the corner of his country property to scream into the ears of passersby, informing them of the merits of pills or toothpaste or hair tonic or tobacco or gasoline or soup. This would constitute a public nuisance.

Why is it not a public nuisance when the property owner leases to corporations the right to station billboards which thus scream to the eye, extolling the wonders of this tobacco or that soup, and blotting out the view of misty mountain top or shadowy river or meeds of vernal flowers?

Pending the development of a public opinion opposed to this so-called "right" of a property owner to make a public nuisance out of his property, something could still be done. If the private citizen has a right to use his property as he sees fit, so has the public. It owns the streets and the sidewalks.

In front of the home of the head of each corporation thus engaged in uglifying the public highways, the Massachusetts authorities might put up their own billboard, with these words emblasoned across it:

As a monument to the selfishness of this man, who lets his corporation's advertisements deface the countryside, this little billboard is erected.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'M not going to argue for or against divorce. If there is any transaction on earth which is the intimate concern of the people involved, it surely is divorce. No outsider has any right to try to influence unhappily married people one way or the other. There is one aspect of the divorce question which does, however, concern all of us, and that is the legal aspect. Whether you and I do or do not believe in divorce, it is an established institution in this country. And at present there is no institution in the United States more badly organized or disastrously managed. This is not the fault of the government at Washington nor the men who make the laws in our various States. It is OUR fault.

We have definite laws concerning land, wood, water, cattle and cabbages, because we have thought definitely along these lines. But we have muddled, ineffective, hypocritical, unfair laws concerning divorce, because we have thought in a muddled, ineffective, hypocritical, unfair manner about divorce. We're secretly and openly ashamed of divorce. We have a sneaking idea that if we hide our head deep enough in the sand, maybe divorce will go away and not bother us any more. But divorce won't go away. It's here to stay. And for our own self-respect and the welfare of generations to come, we'd better brace up and begin to clear out the muddle.

To most of the people in this country, even educated, intelligent people, a recital of our divorce laws comes as a shocking surprise. They had never dreamed of such a condition of affairs! They had never dreamed, for instance, that a man who wished to avoid the support of his wife and family, after divorce, could move into a State adjoining that in which the decree had been given ordering alimony and be as safe from the arm of the law as though he had flitted to the South Sea Islands.

When you tell them that this is the result of the "States' Rights" they are more amazed. What do you mean? You inform them that this government is founded upon States' Rights, and that one State does not interfere with the lives of the citizens in another State except in very special cases. But surely abandonment of a family is a "special case"? No, it isn't. A man may be extradited in case he has murdered his wife and children, but if he has only left them to starve to death he can easily elude punishment. The educated and intelligent citizens protest that this cannot be true. But it is true.

Then you tell them how divorce can be obtained in this country. If two people do not want to live together, if they hate each other and abide in loathing, surely their mutual desire to be rid of each other would seem to constitute the strongest reason for divorce. But that reason for divorce is not accepted in a single State in the Union. They must present dramatic charges. They must prove brutality or unfaithfulness or equally outrageous acts before they are freed. Now most normal, busy people have neither time nor inclination for such acts! They are so depressed by the domestic gloom that they have no energy for chasing or beating. But beaters or chasers they must be if they would achieve divorce. So what do they do? They lie. They call a truce with the hated mate and arrange a satisfactory mess of lies between them.

That's a part—a very small part—of the divorce muddle in this country. A movement is now on foot for uniform Federal divorce laws. That movement is going to occasion a tremendous argument, perhaps the hottest argument this country has ever heard. You should be ready for it, and you can't be ready until you have investigated present conditions. I have told you today of some of the present conditions. What do you think of them?

DR. FRANK CRANE ON TEARING DOWN, BUILDING UP

By DR. FRANK CRANE

TEARING down and building up are needed.

The history of any living organism, from a jellyfish to a nation, is an unremitting conflict between forces of construction or organization and forces of destruction or disorganization.

Life, any life, is a battlefield.

Shakespeare says that from day to day we ripe and ripe and then from day to day we rot and rot "and thereby hangs a tale." He is right. It is the tale of all living things.

A nation, particularly a Democracy, is a living thing.

It functions by means of two opposing political parties. No man devised this system. It just grew. It grew because the nation's existence follows the pattern of the individual's existence; because the nation is a living thing.

Of these two parties the one that is in power is usually the constructive one; it is trying to do things, to accomplish. The party that is out of power, and wants to get in, is usually trying to undo things; it is busy attacking, finding fault, creating dissatisfaction.

Whichever party is in is "pointing with pride," as a rule, and the party that is out is "viewing with alarm."

This does not mean that activities of a destructive nature are not commendable and often necessary. If anything is wrong it certainly needs to be exposed and denounced.

But there is danger that the average citizen may get a wrong impression of those who are running his government. This danger is added to by the fact that whatever is scandalous or sensational is most sought for by the newspapers.

The citizen gets all his information through these papers. He ought to keep in mind that the very fact that a newspaper prints a scandalous story is in itself proof that the story is unusual and exceptional and does not represent general conditions.

The fact that the whole country is stirred up over the charges of wrongdoing made against certain officials is the best kind of evidence that officials, on the whole, are of high character.

If they were commonly crooks the newspapers would make a front page story of one who is honest.

Men who seek public honors by their ability to attack and destroy are following the surest and shortest path to notoriety. But it is a path beset with dangers and rarely leads very far.

It is the quiet, conscientious and industrious minds that do not attract much attention that after all play a more important part in our national life than the others.

In a nation as in an individual, or any other living organism, the upbuilding forces must predominate over the down-pulling forces if the organization is going to grow in health and strength.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON THE BULLET'S SPEED

By Garrett P. Serviss

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

MR. "M. F. C." introduces a very sensible variation in an old "poser" which age seems unable to wither or to deprive of its perpetual greenness. He asks for "the rule that would cover the regulation of force or speed" in such a case as that of a bullet fired with a speed of sixty miles an hour from the rear platform of a train that is traveling sixty miles an hour in the same direction; the question being whether the bullet could reach the engineer. It is premised that the course of the bullet shall lie through the air outside the train.

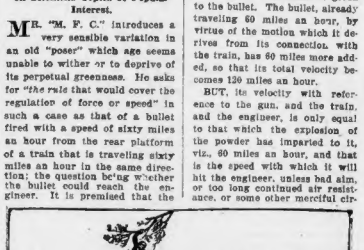
The fact is that the bullet would have no difficulty in reaching the engineer, provided that it was accurately aimed at him, and that there were no obstacles in the way. Of course, if air resistance is taken into account the bullet would gradually lost speed, but that does not affect the gist of the question.

The "rule" by which this is established is the principle of the combination, or addition, of forces; one of the most important in mechanics. If a body in motion has more motion give to it, its speed will be increased, unless the added motion is opposed to the original motion.

The train is moving 60 miles an hour; the engineer is moving with the train 60 miles an hour; the assassin, together with his gun and the bullet in the gun, is moving with the train, 60 miles an hour—in a word, they are all moving together with one common speed. They constitute a system in motion, the same motion being shared by every member of the system.

Then, suddenly, by the firing of the powder, an additional motion of 60 miles an hour in the same common direction is given to the bullet. The bullet, already traveling 60 miles an hour, by virtue of the motion which it derives from its connection with the train, has 60 miles more added, so that its total velocity becomes 120 miles an hour.

BUT, its velocity with reference to the gun, and the train, and the engineer, is only equal to that which the explosion of the powder has imparted to it, viz., 60 miles an hour, and that is the speed with which it will hit the engineer, unless bad aim, or too long continued air resistance, or some other merciful circumstance, save him.



Suppose the saving circumstance to be represented by a runaway organ grinder's monkey swinging down from a tree branch projecting over the railroad, and coming into the line of fire just at the critical moment so as to receive the bullet that was intended for the engineer. With what speed would the bullet hit the monkey?

Since the monkey does not share the motion of the train, common to everything connected with the train, evidently the bullet must hit him with twice the speed with which it would have hit the engineer, if an ancestral trait had not saved him. The monkey would be struck at 120 miles an hour, thus sharing the usual fate of interstraddlers.

From the same rule you can deduce the conclusion that if the assassin had fired from the track instead of from a standing-place on the train, his bullet, traveling only sixty miles an hour, would not have been able to overtake the engineer, since its speed would only have just equalled that of the train.
